the world but judge's picked McVie's shot of the gulls as best of all. Mr. McVie, 45, has previously received many prizes for his camera work. He lives at 2171 Bartlett Avenue, and is employed at HMC Dockyard.

Russians Fear Revolts In Polish Border Area

BERLIN (UP)—The Russians are rushing tanks eastward across Soviet Germany "to maintain internal order in Poland," it was reported today.

The official U.S. occupation newspaper Neue Zeitung said "a great number" of the 700 tanks massed in Berlin to crush last month's workers' revolt have been rushed to the Polish border area.

Allied officials said an undisclosed number of tanks headed eastward out of Red Berlin before dawn Thursday.

The Neue Zeitung story recalled recent reports that widespread Anti-Communist uprisings exploded in Red Poland on June 17, the same day that the German rebellion against Red rule began.

Poles have been reported fighting Soviet and local Communist troops in at least six cities in former East German territories handed over to Poland at the end of the Second World War to compensate for the vast areas of eastern Poland annexed by Russia.

Press reports here said the angry Poles stormed state-owned food stores, ripped down Communist propaganda posters, and tore up rails on the main Berlin-to-Warsaw railway line at several points.

Today's Neue Zeitung story, quoting "Polish underground sources," said the Russians are creating a "zone of death" along Poland's eastern border—a lane nearly 3,000 feet wide, cleared of all trees and undergrowth and patrolled day and night by Soviet troops with savage dogs.

The newspaper knew of no reason for the drastic border measures.

May Cost-of-Living Index Up Half Point

OTTAWA (BUP)—Higher food costs pushed the consumer price index up half a point during May after a steady decline which started last November, the Bureau of Statistics said today.

The index for June 1 was 114.9, compared with 114.4 on May 1, and 116.1 last November. The food index jumped 1.3 points to reach 111.4. The bureau said there were "substantially firmer prices" for fresh and cured pork and fresh fruits and vegetables. There were smaller gains in the prices for most other meats, bread and eggs.

Butter and canned fruits and vegetable prices, however, were lower during the month. The new consumer price index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

On the basis of the old cost of living index, with 1935-39 prices equalling 100, living costs rose 1.2 points during May to hit 184.8 on June 1.

The bureau said that the cost of shelter rose from 122.9 to 123.6 on the new base. This was the result of a 1 per cent increase in rents.

The index of other groups making up the consumer price index—clothing, household operation, and other commodities and services—showed "unusual stability," the bureau said. There was no change during the month in the figures of 110.1 for clothing, 116.6 for household operation, and 115.1 for other commodities and services.

The bureau said in another report that industrial material prices at the wholesale level fell off during the third week of June. The index had been 234.2 since the week of May 29, and fell to 232.7. Changes in the wholesale industrial materials prices are not always fully reflected in living costs.

Bennett Asks Finance Chief to Retain Post

SCs Assured Of 28 Seats; May Get 29

Comfortable Working Majority for Bennett

By GORDON FORBES

Premier W. A. C. Bennett's Social Credit Party is assured of 28 seats in B.C.'s 48-seat Legislature—a comfortable working majority.

This was apparent today on the basis of a detailed study of results of alternative voting throughout the province. Social Credit strength could reach 29 seats if Education Minister Tilly Roston can edge out Liberal Leader Arthur Laing in Vancouver-Point Grey, a contest that will be in doubt until the last vote is transferred.

The trend of vote transfers all over the province, however, indicates that the Social Credit will win the seven other seats in which they now have lead. This, added to 21 already elected, will give Mr. Bennett a minimum of 28 seats—an 8-seat margin over the combined opposition.

The CCF is assured of 14 seats as they are bound to win a second Vancouver East seat where veteran Arthur Turner has a large lead.

In Thursday's counting Social Credit elected two members on the fifth count, Alex Matthews, on Vancouver Centre "A" ballot, who defeated CCF'er James Bury, and George Tomlinson, in North Vancouver, who beat Liberal W. R. McDougall, while CCF'er Frank Calder was returned in the far-north Atlin riding.

These three were the only candidates elected throughout the day and the standing at midnight, when returning officers called it a night, showed:

STANDINGS
Social Credit, 21; CCF, 13; Liberal, 3; Progressive Conservative, 1; and Labor, 1. Leading: Social Credit, 8; CCF, 1.

Final results in a majority of the key Vancouver seats aren't expected to be known until next week because counting teams are bogged down in recounts. An analysis shows that Social Credit candidates, generally speaking, increased their first count leads in subsequent counting wherever a CCF candidate is running second, which is the case in all doubtful ridings but Point Grey.

For instance, in Vancouver Centre the Social Credit candidate led by 828 at the end of the first count but by the end of the fifth count had piled up a majority of 1,259.

This was done by capturing about half as many Conservative second choices as the Liberals, but five times as many as his nearest rival, the CCF. When the Liberal second choices were distributed the Social Credit picked up 300 more than the CCF.

It is certain the same pattern will follow on Vancouver Centre "B" ballot where CCF'er Mrs. Laura Jamieson will be ousted by Social Credit. The Social victory in North Vancouver brought to four the number of seats the party has gained from the Liberals. The CCF has lost three to Social Credit, gaining one from the Liberals. The Liberals have gained one from the CCF and one from the Tories.

QUEEN'S ASSENT
Since Margaret is next in line for the throne after Prince Charles and Princess Anne, Margaret must receive the Queen's permission before marrying.

Tall, dashing, dark-haired Townsend was a hero of the Battle of Britain as a fighter pilot. The late King George VI appointed him an honorary nine years ago, and Townsend held the position until his Brussels transfer was ordered.

Townsend frequently has escorted Margaret to the theatre and has been her dancing partner at numerous balls. At one time he was mentioned for the job of comptroller of Queen Mother Elizabeth's household, which would have brought him into even closer association with Margaret.

Buckingham Palace denied there were any romantic reasons for the transfer, but for some time court circles have been commenting on what appeared to be a deep affection between Townsend and Margaret.

NEW TYPHOON BEARS DOWN TOWARDS JAPAN

TOKYO (UP)—The year's most violent typhoon churned up the South Pacific today toward Formosa, the Okinawas and flood-battered Japan.

Weather observers hoisted storm warnings on the east coast of Formosa and the tiny islets between Formosa and the Ryukyus.

South Japan braced itself as its people prayed that the storm, packing 160-mile-an-hour winds at its centre, would turn away from them. The Japanese faced an epidemic of dysentery which already has taken 53 lives in the aftermath of last week's floods, Japan's worst in 60 years.

Typhoon "Kit" was located 400 miles east of Formosa today. Moving at a speed of 10 miles an hour, it was expected to skirt the Formosan coast and indicate its course as it moved toward the south entrance of the China Sea.

TIMES CROSSWORD WINNER

Happy Woman Sent In 55 Solutions

"It was awfully difficult to know which was the right word," a surprised but happy Mrs. Alice Alder, of 1728 Coronation Avenue, confided today when notified she was the winner of $25 in the Times weekly crossword contest.

Mrs. Alder got around part of the difficulty, however, by sending in multiple answers, using alternate words for all the blanks she was not too sure about.

"I worked out quite a system so I didn't have to spend too much time on it," she said. She submitted 55 different possible solutions. Five of these were on the forms printed in the Times and 50 were on home-made forms.

Mrs. Alder, a widow since last March, is the mother of a four and a half year old son, Lawrence. She says she will have no difficulty in putting her prize money to good use.

For the new crossword starting today a new set of rules has been adopted. It will include a $50 bonus for winners who are subscribers to the Victoria Times.

See Page 7 for the new puzzle and new rules. The answer to Puzzle 14, won by Mrs. Alder, is on Page 6.

Rhee's Stand Leaves Talks in Stalemate

South Korean Leader Holds Firm to Demand For Unified Nation in New Appeal to U.S.

SEOUL (AP)—Korean truce talks were stalemated today as President Syngman Rhee clung stubbornly to his demand for a unified Korea and said he "will never abandon the struggle half way."

In a plea recorded by CBS, Rhee called on the United States to back him, and promised that his people "will keep fighting and dying" in the battle against Communism.

"The Korean people will never swerve from the original objective of our common cause," he said. "We cannot afford to rest or halt until we consummate the democratic world."

Rhee's plea came after a 65-minute morning meeting with U.S. envoy Walter S. Robertson—his seventh secret session.

A high source said Robertson rejected Rhee's demand for war if a post-armistice political conference doesn't agree within 90 days to unify Korea.

After the conference Robertson told newspapermen: "Our discussions are continuing. I expect to see President Rhee again."

No time has been set for the next session. Even if Rhee and Robertson reach agreement, the UN must get the Communist to sign the truce.

Irish Guard Young Queen
BELFAST (AP)—The Queen toured the heart of Northern Ireland today under heavy guard.

Explosive experts checked bridges between Belfast and Londonderry along the 90-mile route the royal train passed. Security measures were strengthened after anti-royalists damaged a bridge with a time bomb Thursday near the Irish Republic border. This incident was regarded as a protest against the partition of Ireland rather than a direct attack on the young Queen. The bridge was miles from the royal party's route.

Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh got a friendly reception in the six counties which still owe allegiance to the British crown.

A naval spokesman said the plane's pilot radioed at 8:50 a.m. that one engine had failed and that he was attempting an open-sea landing in heavy fog and a 50-foot ceiling. The pilot gave his position as near Great Skidin Island, about 30 miles northeast of Adak and 1,000 miles southwest of here.

Several hours later, a coast guard plane reported sighting a large oil slick and floating debris at approximately the position given. Other search planes continued to comb the area, without results.

The navy said the plane, a Martin Mariner, was on routine patrol.

Gunderson Will Reply To Invitation Shortly

Premier W. A. C. Bennett has asked Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, defeated in Oak Bay in the general election, to stay in his cabinet.

The premier, who has just returned from an eastern party conference, said today he has offered to hold a by-election to allow Mr. Gunderson to try for another seat.

He didn't indicate which seat will be opened, and said the by-election could not be held until after the special fall session.

The finance minister will make his decision within two weeks.

Questioned by reporters, Mr. Gunderson left the impression with some he may continue, but he declined to make a definite decision until he has "thought it out."

GREAT SACRIFICE
"It will be a great personal sacrifice to me if I stay in politics," he said.

Mr. Gunderson was first appointed to the cabinet by Premier Bennett after the 1952 election. Later, he won the Similkameen seat in a by-election. He left the interior seat to contest Oak Bay, and was beaten by Liberal P. A. Gibbs.

He declined to discuss the possibility of seeking a federal seat in the August 10 election.

If he decides to carry on, he will not be able to sit in the legislature when it meets September 15.

Premier Bennett said he would speak for the Finance Minister in the House.

DISAPPOINTED
The Premier termed Mr. Gunderson's defeat "one of the great disappointments of the election."

"If he retires, it will be a great loss to B.C.," he said.

Premier Bennett explained it would be impossible to hold a by-election for Mr. Gunderson before the September session.

The Premier did not favor the suggestion that a new seat be created for the by-election.

He felt redistribution should be effected only for a general election.

On this matter, he expects to start the big redistribution task at next February's session.

WANTS TIME
"We want the committee to have plenty of time to work on it," he said.

Asked if he's considering appointment of a cabinet minister from among the Island Social MLA's, Premier Bennett would only say:

"The Island had an opportunity to have a cabinet minister (Gunderson)."

He said he had no cabinet changes in mind at the present time.

Meanwhile, a Vancouver report quoted Premier Bennett as saying there will be changes in B.C.'s system before another election. The Vancouver story said there would be a revision or perhaps total scrapping of the alternative voting system.

OPTIMISTIC
The Premier doesn't think Education Minister Tilly Roston is in any danger of being defeated by Liberal leader Arthur Laing in Point Grey.

He noted the "peculiar observations" in the press that Mr. Laing may win the seat.

"They haven't even started the second count yet," observed the Premier.

Premier Bennett said he plans to campaign in the coming federal election, but only in B.C.

During the Toronto conference, he said he has time to discuss B.C.'s forthcoming submission to Ottawa on Dominion-Provincial relations with Carl Goldenberg, B.C.'s economic council.

Premier Bennett said he will ask for a conference with Ottawa after the federal election at which he will press his argument for a better financial deal with the senior government.

The Premier leaves for his Kelowna home Sunday, and will return to the capital about next Friday.

A movement has been started in Sidney to "draft Gunderson for Saanich." It was reported at press time.

A Sidney merchant, Samuel D. Walker of 871 Third Street, said businessmen of the town "are solidly behind the plan."

He would take the seat won by Social John D. Tisdalle from the former CCF member, Frank Snowball.

PREMIER BENNETT ... home to victory.

MARGARET'S ROMANCE NIPPED?

Britain Buzzes After Transfer Of Dashing Townsend to Belgium

LONDON (BUP)—Britain buzzed today with excited and romantic speculation about Princess Margaret and divorced Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

They became the main topic of conversation in Britain after the handsome Townsend was transferred to a post in Belgium while the pretty princess was on an African tour with her mother.

Both the press and public were speculating about the love life of the 22-year-old princess. Headlines announced Townsend's "surprise" transfer from Buckingham Palace, where he has served as a royal equerry in waiting, to the post of air attaché in Brussels.

French Move to Stifle Uprising in Cambodia

Reinforcements Rushed After King Threatens to Fight for Freedom

SAIGON, Indo-China (UP)—France rushed reinforcements today to Cambodia, where King Norodom Sihanouk is threatening a "tenfold" increase in his army to press a fight for freedom from the French.

Truck convoys with enough seasoned Arab troops — Algerian Spahis and Moroccan riflemen — to double French strength in Cambodia moved southward Thursday night and early today from camps in Laos toward the remote jungle kingdom.

An official spokesman here said that Gen. Pierre Langlade, French commander in Cambodia, "has now sufficient means at his disposal to cope with any eventuality."

At the same time, reports from Phnom Penh, the capital of Cambodia, said 50 cadets from the royal army officers' school — half of this year's graduating class — have deserted.

First reports said the cadets had joined the Communists, but French officers in Phnom Penh said they probably were on their way to join Norodom's forces in the northwestern jungles.

Other official reports from the Cambodian capital said that rice — the staple food of its people — has virtually disappeared from markets during the past 24 hours, creating a threat of "dangerous movements" among civilians already aroused by Norodom's threats.

The French spokesman here said the reinforcements now on the way to Cambodia will increase French strength there to about 20,000 men, against a Cambodian army whose strength he estimated at about 13,000.

He said Langlade is disposing his forces to provide "immediate and efficient protection" of the lives and property of the 4,700-odd French civilians who live in Cambodia.

More Independence Offered

PARIS (UP)—France offered the three associated states of Indo-China more independence today in an attempt to end the threat that they will break away from the French union.

Premier Joseph Laniel made the offer in notes handed to diplomatic envoys of Cambodia, Laos and Viet Nam.

The foreign office also announced appointment of Maurice De Jean, now ambassador to Japan, as France's new high commissioner in Indo-China, in another move to end the critical situation there.

It was understood the note, which will be made public tonight, offered the three states a new deal in which remnants of pre-war colonial administration would be abolished and proposed a joint study of the entire situation.

The notes also asked the states to approve the appointment of De Jean as high commissioner.

In the case of Indo-China, the conferees would work to amend the 1949 convention governing relations between France and the Indo-Chinese states, which Cambodia and Viet Nam call obsolete.

The identical note to the three states was drafted at three hurried cabinet meetings Thursday. In its final form it was a synthesis of the sharply divergent views of different cabinet ministers, some of whom demanded a stiffer policy in Indo-China.

Lady Sees Red But Not Pink Money Belt

MONTREAL (BUP)—A Minnesota housewife called for Europe today minus the pink moneybelt she had purchased to safeguard her $250 cash for the overseas trip.

She was minus the money, too.

"I had the belt—it was pink, tied around my waist—one hour before I got off the Toronto-Montreal train," Mrs. R. W. Bowden, of Duluth, told police Thursday night.

"I went to the rest room, got off the train, came to the hotel, ate supper, went up to the room to change into something cooler—and the belt was gone."

"I just can't understand where it got to," she said.

Mrs. Bowden was one of a group of 20 women from Minnesota and Iowa who are en route overseas for a three-month tour of the British Isles and the continent. They sailed early today aboard the Empress of France.

Mrs. Edna Ahlen, another of the ladies, also purchased a money belt—a grey one.

"And I've still got it," she said at dockside. "I took it off my waist and put it under my pillow before going to sleep last night."

"I'm not taking any chances."

The oldest European "death mask" is believed to be that of Edward III of England, who died in 1377.

CHURCHILL 'RESTS' AT WAR MEMOIRS

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, chafing under forced idleness, has started work on his war memoirs, reliable informants said today.

Churchill's physicians ordered him to take a complete rest—or as nearly complete as it possible for a man of his remarkable energy.

However, the 78-year-old leader has used his rest so far to invite old friends down to his country home for lunch and dinner and generally to renew his social life.

He also reads important papers on foreign and domestic issues.

Police Cleared Of Any Blame in Murder of Child

NORTH BAY, Ont. (BUP)—City police were cleared of any blame today for failing to find three-year-old Susan Hutchins before she was criminally attacked and murdered May 20.

The police commission absolved the city force of any blame after an investigation prompted by citizens' complaints of police delays.

The report said the attitude of the child's parents after their daughter vanished was enough to allay police fears of violence.

The commission said the little girl's mother reported leaving Susan with a man known to both her and her husband.

Police had testified at the public inquiry that she seemed drunk when they questioned her.

Mervyn J. Hutson, 29, wounded war veteran with a steel plate in his head, was charged with the child's murder after her ravaged body was found in a thicket near here by three children.

YARD OFFICERS HUNT MYSTERY IN SICAMOUS

LONDON (CP)—Two Scotland Yard officers have gone to Canada to continue inquiries into the disappearance 14 years ago of 64-year-old Mrs. Louise Lee, it was learned today.

It is understood the officers—detective superintendent John Black and detective-inspector Neil Sutherland—left last week-end for Sicamous, B.C.

The Evening Standard said in a front-page story the officers want to interview Charles Seed, former real estate agent at Margate, Kent. Seed handled purchase and resale of certain property to Mrs. Lee.

The newspaper also said the decision to send two Scotland Yard officers to Canada was taken after study of a 5,000-word report on the Lee case. It was believed the Royal Canadian Mounted Police co-operated in drawing up the report. Inquiries were made in Canada last year.

Mrs. Lee, a widow, disappeared from her home in Cliftonville, Kent, in 1939.

Health Scheme Reported New Liberal Plan

St. Laurent Also Expected to Promise Servants Five-Day Week

By NORMAN M. MACLEOD
OTTAWA (BUP)—Generally well-informed Liberal sources predicted today that Prime Minister St. Laurent will make four attractive promises to the people when he speaks in the capital this month.

Mr. St. Laurent was reported ready to offer:
1. A scheme of national health insurance to be provided during the lifetime of the coming parliament.
2. A general five-day week for federal civil servants, regardless of where they are employed.
3. Across-the-board raises for Ottawa civil servants.

4. Replacement of God Save the Queen with a distinctive Canadian national anthem, and adoption as well of a distinctive Canadian flag.

The prominence of the provisions affecting the federal civil servants was said to be the reason the prime minister considered it appropriate to announce the program before an Ottawa audience.

The date of the prime minister's Ottawa meeting has not yet been announced.

It was reported that any departure by the government from its policy of standing simply upon its record of the past 18 years would add life to an undeniably listless campaign. So far political prophets in these parts who went out on a limb to forecast a warm contest have been left with only the summer heat wave to support their predictions.

Yuma's 20,000 Residents Without Water

Water Main Break In 115-Degree Heat

YUMA, Ariz. (UP)—The desert city of Yuma's 20,000 residents were completely without water today after a water main break cut off the sorely-needed supply.

The city's population, without water since Thursday afternoon, suffered through the night in sweltering temperatures of over 100 degrees. The mercury soared to 115 degrees here Thursday.

The main was repaired late Thursday night, but officials of the Arizona Public Service Company, an electrical utility, said no water would run out of taps until the city's reservoir was replenished.

Many residents were reported going to Winterhaven, Calif., one mile away, to get water. Lee Poe, southwestern superintendent for the utility company, said Yuma residents have been co-operating "wonderfully" during the ordeal.

Poe said that when the reservoir is replenished the city still will have only half of its normal water supply.

Officials expressed fear of fire, saying that without water the fire department would be seriously handicapped in fighting flames.

Companies selling bottled drinking water reported they were sold out. The largest hospital in Yuma is served with an emergency well so patients were in no immediate need of water.

Cardinal Stepinac's Condition Said Grave

BELGRADE (Reuters)—The condition of Aloysius Cardinal Stepinac of Zagreb, Ill with a blood complaint, is becoming serious, usually reliable sources said today. The 54-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church in Yugoslavia is confined by the government to Krasic village, near Zagreb, because of alleged wartime collaboration with the Nazis.

SUNDAY MOVIES ON TORONTO ISLAND HIT BY LABOR, CHURCH

TORONTO (BUP)—The city was under fire from labor and religious groups today for granting permission for Sunday night movies at Hanlan's Point.

The Toronto District Labor Council promised a protest to city council after Theodore Covert, spokesman for the AFL Projectionists' Union, said the move was the opening wedge in a campaign for Sunday movies.

The Toronto Transportation Commission planned the educational films to draw more people to the island and reduce a ferry service deficit.

'Valley of 10,000 Smokes' Volcanoes Reported Active

KODIAK, Alaska (BUP)—The United States navy reported today that volcanoes had shown ominous signs of activity in Alaska's "Valley of 10,000 Smokes."

The fishing vessel Pankoff reported sighting clouds of smoke and dust in Shelikof Straits opposite Uyak Bay on Kodiak Island, and peaseed pumice stones were found floating in the sea passage.

A navy pilot sent to the Katmai area of the Alaskan Peninsula said two volcanoes in the valley definitely were showing some action out of the ordinary.

Mount Mageik crater was pouring out white steam in excessive quantities.

Mount Trident, which went on a rampage last February, appears to have a swollen mound in the eruption area near the top, the pilot reported.

N.Y. Trainmen's 'Sickness' Hits Commuters

NEW YORK (UP)—Some 500 Long Island railroad trainmen reported "sick" today, forcing cancellation of more than 100 trains and adding an extra day to the holiday weekend for thousands of suburban commuters who had no way to get to work in the city.

The unauthorized work stoppage threatened to spoil the plans of hundreds of city dwellers who had planned to take off tonight for a Fourth of July weekend at Long Island resorts and beaches.

There was no immediate explanation for the work stoppage, which the railroad said involved a "minor grievance" of employees. A railroad official said the president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen had called the concerted sickness "illegal and unauthorized."

Mr. Bennett's Mandate

THE BENNETT GOVERNMENT seems assured of a working majority in the new legislature, though only 38 per cent of the British Columbia voters supported it by their first-choice ballots. In an election split four ways no party can hope for an over-all majority of the popular vote but the government has received a mandate to govern. Assuredly, however, Social Credit as a theory of economics has received no mandate since it was hardly an issue in the election, few candidates dared to recommend it outright and probably fewer still understood it.

Now that it is safely confirmed in office the government should be given every opportunity to conduct the public business in an orderly fashion. All the policies that it may submit to the legislature should be considered purely on their merits. While the duty of an opposition, by the classic definition, is to oppose, there should be no opposition for opposition's sake. Where the government seems to be acting wisely the opposition should support it. Now that the election is over and the next one four years off it is no time for scoring mere debating points.

But federal politics are quite a different matter. The Bennett government not only has entered the federal election campaign with all the power and wealth of its organization but Mr. Bennett apparently intends to make himself a dominant force in the national Social Credit party. Significantly enough, at the recent party convention in Toronto, it was Mr. Bennett who announced the "March on Ottawa," the plan to destroy the Conservative party and capture the national government in "two bites," as happened in British Columbia.

That is to say, Mr. Bennett expects the present election to end in a stalemate (the worst possible result for the nation) and out of the stalemate Social Credit will emerge as a majority party.

This appears to be a pretty wild dream at the moment but it indicates clearly Mr. Bennett's own ambitions. If he intends to take Mr. Solon Low's place later on he should remember meanwhile that the voters of British Columbia did not give him any mandate in federal affairs and they did not expect him or his government to use their time in Victoria which does not concern them. Their job is right here in Victoria.

So far as provincial politics are concerned the final count of ballots leaves the Liberal and Conservative parties in a position of "unprecedented weakness."

The Liberal party won 24 per cent of the popular first-choice vote—a slight gain over its total in 1952, while the Conservatives dropped to five per cent. Since Social Credit is an extreme right-wing party there can hardly be room for another party of the right. Provincially the Conservative party may be dead and certainly is paralyzed for the visible future.

Now that our politics are largely divided between the extremes of right and left, with a Social Credit government and a CCF opposition, the historic and proper position of the Liberal party as the moderating force of the centre is still open and needs to be filled. The duty and the opportunity of the Liberal party is to fill it.

While its present position is weak a period of opposition may well serve a useful purpose by compelling it to return to first principles. If the party can weather the present storm its chance of recovery will come in due time because the instinct of the Canadian people is opposed to extremes of policy on either side and invariably seeks the middle of the road.

Recalling the Rhodes' Ideal

THIS WEEK, IN OXFORD, Rhodes Scholars from all parts of the Commonwealth and the United States honored the memory of the scholarship founder at special ceremonies. Simultaneously, in Bulawayo an international exhibition commemorating the centenary of Rhodes' birth was opened by Queen Mother Elizabeth.

The events draw attention at this time to the Rhodes' ideal of the all-round man.

History has assessed the importance of the young Britisher who went to South Africa in early manhood, amassed a fortune and used it in part to assist suitable candidates to further their educations through the best-known scholarship system in the world.

Some of Rhodes' deeds have been the subject of controversy. On his scholarship endowment, opinion has been virtually unanimous and favorable. The awards have been instrumental in helping young men of sound intellectual attainments and balanced personalities to capitalize on their abilities. Their subsequent records in the countries where they have used their talents speak for themselves.

At this time of high specialization, the Rhodes objective, the development of mind, spirit and body, is particularly significant. It is a goal singularly appropriate in the age of the new Elizabethans.

For Everybody's Benefit

IN HIS CONCLUDING REMARKS to the Canadian Club the other night Mr. F. L. Shaw has expressed the constructive attitude toward Greater Victoria amalgamation.

"Let's get a full and thorough report from an impartial source, then get together and work it out for the benefit of everybody concerned."

If that attitude prevails this community may proceed without the frictions which have so far impeded the orderly unification of Greater Victoria.

Probably no one in this region has given the subject of amalgamation as much thought as has Mr. Shaw. He cites the misfortunes which have accompanied unplanned and unco-ordinated development—the destruction of the Gorge as a water resort among them. He notes the inevitability of combined services, listing instances in which they have already been accomplished. And he has pointed to similar trends in other parts of Canada where opposition to unification has been overcome and benefits of amalgamation recognized.

Mr. Shaw's proposal—supported by the Chamber of Commerce—is essentially fair. It should do much to overcome municipal distrusts. First he calls for information and then action "for the benefit of everybody concerned."

Death by the Roadside

IT IS AN ACCEPTED PRINCIPLE in timbered countries where logging operations are conducted that at least a fringe of trees should be left standing along highways. Where the policy is followed a screen is stretched between the traveler and the desolation of logged-over areas.

But oddly enough, on the lower part of the Island highway at least, the prevailing weed control system appears to defeat that purpose. Sprays kill growth by the roadside. The big conifers escape, but other vegetation withers, turns brown and dies. Travelers are beckoned along the route with the corpses of brush and small trees.

Beyond creating a hideous border, the practice surely increases fire hazard. That dead foliage and brush will need only a spark to set it blazing when the hot weather comes.

It establishes probably as high a roadside fire menace as do the knocked-down small trees on the power line route beside the Shawnigan cut-off.

Is it economy to create such dangers while desecrating a vista which can please neither local resident nor tourist?

The Disenchanted

THERE IS SOMETHING POIGNANT today in the remarks of the Oak Bay gentlemen recently purged by the Social Credit party.

"We thought this was a genuine people's movement," they are quoted in the press, "where the little man had a chance to be heard. Now we find Social Credit is a political party—a machine."

Alas, comes the dawn, and the attendant disenchantment.

Messrs. Alexander, Scott and Holker tried to protest what they considered an unjust government suspension. In so doing, they embarrassed their leaders. And what was the result?

Their heads rolled—in a manner just as ruthless and expeditious as in any dictatorship. To them, and to the hundreds of others who are still scratching their heads in disbelief, we can only say: Here eneth the first lesson.

Fine Time to Rock the Boat

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

LAST time I was telling you about some English schoolgirls, St. Trinian types, who thought it would be "rather nice" to burn down their dear old school, and who made a jolly good try. I suppose it never occurred to them that instead of the caretaker discovering the fire (in the late evening), the police might have found the charred fragments of the caretaker's body in the early dawn. These things do happen.

In a certain European colony, which I had better not name, because many readers have visited it and even lived there, and other readers may go there one day, you will undoubtedly meet a very successful business man. He practically owns the whole colony. Especially all the vice in the colony... he owns the drink, the gambling, the drugs, and the dancing girls. He also has quite a few sidelines.

EVERY evening Johnny (which is not his name) will say to whoever is with him "Come and see Johnny milk his cows." He grabs a couple of empty suitcases. By the time he has called at each of his joints, the two suitcases are full of money. The man throws into his room. The companion will say "Aren't you even going to count it?" To which Johnny replies "Oh, the girls will count it in the morning."

WELL, one day, a long time ago, Johnny was rather hard up, except for owning a large schooner which nobody would buy from him. So he insured her heavily and took her out to sea and set her on fire. Burning a ship for the insurance is a nerve-wracking business at best, so even the cold-blooded Johnny got a bit excited, and when he and the crew piled into the lifeboat he forgot that one member of the crew was asleep below. By this time it was impossible to fetch the man out. So the man died, by fire or water or both.

WHEN Johnny got back to the colony, the crew had some peculiar things to report. (He had to take a crew, to make it seem like a legitimate voyage. One accomplice to help handle the vessel and to swear appropriate evidence would not have been enough.) Johnny was sentenced to death. After a respectable delay, this sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. And after serving

ALL THE LIBERALS' FAULT

It is obvious the Times is again out to induce voters to maintain the present system of free exploitation.

The Times ignores the press's obligation to the public, and need of press integrity. Its attitude is so twisted it will not face facts.

Liberals started the funny money by inflating their own salaries, prices of food, rents, taxes, medical and medicine, etc., also exchange rates, etc.

Now, that policy and the exploitation has priced us out of world markets, and reduced home buying too.

Liberal promises re lack of housing and health insurance have backfired, and the credit system has made us money slaves.

In face of above facts, the Times should have a hard time pushing home Liberalism on August 10.

When Mike Tipped off Ike

BY JOSEPH and STEWART ALSO, From Washington

THE real story of what happened at Dartmouth—of how the President was stimulated to his famous denunciation of "book burning"—is still highly relevant and important.

To begin with, the President's swing around the country that took him to Dartmouth was preceded by a long White House debate about "The McCarthy problem," as the President's advisers significantly call it. As is well known, the President personally not only detests Joseph R. McCarthy's methods but also abhors the man himself. The administration's surrenders to Senator McCarthy—and surrender, unfortunately, is the only word to use—have been made for the sole purpose of maintaining the outward show of Republican unity.

When the President's speeches were being prepared, one group of Eisenhower's advisers urged him to speak to the country about "the McCarthy problem" almost as he speaks in private, making no personal attack to be sure, but reaffirming American principles of fair play, and leaving no doubt as to his feelings about the McCarthy methods.

This advice was inevitably opposed by the other White House faction, who advocate Republican unity at all costs.

The result was a compromise. A passage was inserted in the President's speech at Mount Rushmore, warning against those who would "guard freedom with weapons from the arsenal of the tyrant."

More than one of those traveling with the President plainly stated that these words were spoken with Senator McCarthy in mind. There is no doubt that this was the intention. But the intention was not fulfilled. The President's language, though noble and sincere, was not sufficiently pointed. What was said at Mount Rushmore attracted little attention.

By way of contrast, there was no intention to take any sort of stand on any serious problem at the Dartmouth commencements, where the President's language attracted world attention. The whole thing happened on the platform, while the Dartmouth graduating class was filling into his places.

In this happy academic interval, the President, Judge Joseph M. Proskauer of New York, former German High Commissioner John J. McCloy, and Canada's Minister of External Affairs, Lester "Mike" Pearson, were sitting together on the dais. Judge Proskauer, who was sitting next to McCloy, raised the subject of "book-burning"—of the removal from American libraries abroad of all books by authors or on subjects that might just possibly displease Senator McCarthy. For McCloy, this was a burning issue. The libraries of the "American House" in Germany had always been one of McCloy's great interests. In his last year as high commissioner, he had seen them used by no less than 15,000,000 Germans. Nothing had contributed more importantly, McCloy believed, to showing the real America to German people.

Then, too, with the beginning of the McCarthy-stimulated "book-burning" by the State Department, scores of Germans had started writing to McCloy. The worried Germans asked whether America had changed, whether freedom of thought was no longer in fashion here, even whether America was taking the road Germany took 20 years ago. Many of these letters came from real leaders of German thought.

Canadian Minister Pearson was then drawn into the discussion. He pointed out, entirely correctly, that the book-burning had done America's prestige untold damage in many other countries besides Germany. At this the President pricked his ears, as it were. He had not been following the conversation, but now he asked what his companions were talking about.

When he was told, he was visibly indignant. His first reaction—which is immensely interesting in itself—was to deny the whole story. Nothing of the sort could be going on, he said; no order had been issued to censor the American overseas libraries.

His companions assured Eisenhower that he was not fully informed; that book-burning, at least in the figurative sense, was actually taking place on a major scale; and that orders for this practice had, in fact, been issued. The President flushed. And when his turn came to speak, he said, in plain and stirring words, just what he thought of book-burning, for the whole world to hear.

This incident and its sequels illustrate dramatically the difference between the real Eisenhower and the public Eisenhower. The real Eisenhower, spontaneous and truly himself, appeared at Dartmouth. The public Eisenhower was exhibited a couple of days later at the President's press conference.

By then, the political mice who are always trying to nibble the President to death, or at least into meaninglessness, had had time to do their work. The press conference smudged and muddled the stand the president took at Dartmouth, so much so, indeed, that the President had to reassert his views in his letter to the American libraries. Yet, the mice are still nibbling.

A Dream That Came to Life

BY ERIC ROBINS, in The Toronto Globe and Mail

WHILE the Queen Mother is in Rhodesia this month she will unveil the statue of a boy who helped to people an Empire. The statue, in Christmas Pass overlooking Umtali, is of a handsome 11-year-old boy with his pet fox terrier Vixen and his native boy Jack at his feet. The statue was fashioned by W. McMillan.

It is of Kingsley Fairbridge who stood, hungry and weary, on this spot in the Rhodesia wilderness of 1896.

It was then that young Kingsley Fairbridge had a vision from which sprang the Kingsley Fairbridge farm schools for British child immigrants in Canada, Australia and Rhodesia.

"I saw little children shedding the bondage of bitter circumstances and stretching their legs and minds amid the thousand interests of the farm," he said later. "I saw waste turned to providence, the waste of unneeded humanity converted to the husbandry of unpeopled acres."

His widow, who as a girl helped to make his dream come true, will be at the Queen Mother's side during the unveiling ceremony. Mrs. Fairbridge has come from Australia at the invitation of the Rhodesians to be present at the unveiling.

Kingsley Fairbridge left college in South Africa to go to Rhodesia with his mother and two younger sisters. There they lived in the rough and ready style of pioneers. Kingsley's father, a surveyor, offered his son the choice of working with him in the wilds, or going back to school in South Africa. "I'll stay with you," said the boy. "I want to be a pioneer."

His father sent him out with a native boy to build huts that would serve as a claim to occupation on a farm some miles from the site on which Umtali now stands. Kingsley set to work. At the end of a week the food they had brought with them had run out and jeering natives would sell them no more.

For the last three days, Kingsley and his native servant worked day and night in the rain with no food. The job finished.

ashed, they set off to trek back home. In his misery and hunger, the boy surveyed the rugged land around him and wished it would change miraculously into friendly farms. From that day, it was his burning ambition to people the waste spaces.

At 17, with the money he had saved in the wilds, Kingsley Fairbridge went on a visit to England. "He was deeply touched by the plight of children in London's teeming streets, and he wondered how he could get them out into the Rhodesian veldt he loved," says Mrs. Fairbridge.

When he was 21, the dreamer took his savings and went to England via Australia and Canada with the thought of child emigration uppermost in his mind.

A Rhodes scholarship gave him three years at Oxford—he had to "work like a slave" to pass his entrance examinations—and brought him influential friends. These friends formed a society—"The Society for the Furtherance of Child Emigration to the Colonies."

The Chartered Company of Rhodesia, however, turned down Kingsley Fairbridge's child immigration scheme as they thought Rhodesia too undeveloped for the plan to work.

Western Australia offered a tract of land near Pinjarra, and it was there that he and his bride made a start in 1912. Twelve children followed them out and lived in tents while they helped to build the school.

It was a hard struggle. When the First World War broke out and stopped progress for a time, the society wanted Kingsley Fairbridge to abandon the scheme.

At the end of the war, he and his family went back to England to raise funds. The House of Commons voted £20,000 for his scheme and grants were made by the Australian central and state governments.

In his hour of triumph in 1924, Kingsley Fairbridge died. But in Rhodesia, the land of his vision, and Canada, the work went on.

Going, Going, But Not Gone

If you thumb through a 20-year-old Canadian Amateur Swimming Association handbook, you'll find in it a definition of the permissible brevity of a swim suit.

Speaking from memory, I'd say it limited the shortness of the "costume" legs to four inches above the knee. And, again from memory, it required a shoulder strap a couple of inches wide. The regulations were written into the book and stayed there long after swimmers adopted skin-tight numbers that reached from here to there and were held over the shoulders by nothing more than narrow straps.

If anybody had raised a holler about it, and boys who didn't wear the prescribed suits could have been thrown out of galas and banned from swimming. The rules were tough in those days. They even limited the prizes a swimmer could receive to a medal, a cup, a sweater or a swimming suit. Anything more practical made you a professional. Amateurism was washed pure and pre-shrunk.

Up at the "Free," the Gorge regulars didn't go for the CASA ruling. Kids seemed to grow out of their suits from the bottom up. And after they'd taken a couple of dives off the "Free" board, they'd peel down their tops to drowse on the sun bench on the men's side. In that state of undress they looked like Gunga Din. The uniform they wore was nothing much before and rather less than half of that behind.

PROPRIETIES

But that was on the men's side only. It was improper and dangerous to dive in with your suit rolled down. It didn't seem correct to have your top exposed when you were actually swimming. Old-timers would talk about the "slips" they wore at the "baths" in England, telling you how sensible they were—"only thing to wear swimming. Courses we didn't have mixed bathing."

So the years rolled by and suits got shorter at the bottom. Designers started to make them narrower at the top. They revolutionized the industry by making what was called a "kidney" cut, which removed the material beneath the arm-hole down as far as the hips. But still they had tops.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club came out with a special diving number. It had short light blue skintight pants, a white upper section about as wide across the chest as a small girl's hair-ribbon and carried over the back with a couple of tapes about half an inch across.

If you were a diver, you had to have an LAAC suit. Mickey Riley wore one. So did "Dutchie" Smith, Farid Simaiki, Frankie Kurtz and even Dick Degener, though he came from Detroit.

THE REVOLUTION

And then came the revolution. Top-notch swimmers and divers appeared in trunks. They were pretty conventional, high-waisted numbers, fastened with fancy belts. The nude male upper torso became acceptable. But not to the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association until years later.

At the Crystal Garden the Canadian tradition was maintained. Swim you could at the Garden, but not in trunks. No matter what you thought about them, they weren't quite decent. And so it went for several years.

The Garden was still renting out big, red-wood suits, long in the leg and two inches across the shoulder strap.

You look back on those days now and you listen to the kids when some old-fashioned body comes into the pool in the suit of yesterday: "Lookit the old goat in the swimmin' suit. Chee, where's he bin?"

You can still see the suits on occasion. Comedy divers use them for laughs at some of the galas.

Then you look at one of the Marilyn Monroe pictures, or take a surreptitious peek at the daring young girl in the Parisian creation, and you wonder.

You keep wondering where the swimming suit is going each succeeding summer. You may even think that Gunga Din was over-dressed. But there are limits. That's what the Saanich police were proving to the boys at Island View Beach this week.

In public places, there's no questioning the fact that the swim suit is going, going, going. But this year it hasn't gone entirely.

'Uncle Louis' on the Hustings

NOT since the days of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir John A. Macdonald has Canada seen a campaigner on the hustings like Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

It will be many years before the people in the small western Ontario communities where the Liberal leader opened his election tour, forget the visit of the grey-haired gentleman with the winning smile and ever-ready handshake. His charm and courtly manner impressed all those who saw and heard him.

Once you have watched him in action it is easy to understand why the simple term, "Uncle Louis" typifies the warm human approach that he brings to electioneering. It is refreshing and appealing. After a tour of small rural and urban communities with the Prime Minister, such as this writer recently made, it is apparent why the Liberal party is confident that it cannot lose with Mr. St. Laurent as its leader in this election.

During the week that he spent in the initial part of the campaign touring western Ontario before going to the Maritimes and then out west, he traveled by train and automobile. There were frequent whistle stops, where a crowd of people from the area had gathered to wave flags and catch a glimpse of the distinguished gentleman who is their Prime Minister, as he passed by.

The train or automobiles would come to a brief, possibly unscheduled stop and without the slightest hesitation the man in the dark grey suit, would be moving among the crowd shaking hands, exchanging greetings, waving and obviously enjoying himself.

And on all sides you would hear comments like these among the crowd: "Isn't he a fine man?" "Look, he really gets a bang out of talking to the kids." "Gosh, he's distinguished looking, a great guy."

Decline of Star System

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The growing peril to Hollywood's star system was dramatized today with the news that 20th Century-Fox had parted with its biggest money-maker, Betty Grable.

The star and the studio reached an "amicable" ending of her contract, which would have expired in September, 1954. During her 13-year reign as queen of the lot, she earned millions for herself and the company in musicals. She became No. 1 box office draw in wartime and has remained among the top 10 longer than any other female star.

At 36, her glamour games still are holding their own with the newer names. Then why would 20th Century-Fox grant her wish for freedom?

One of the principal reasons is that the film studios can no longer support the expensive star lists of the past, with picture-making divorced from theatre operation by government order under the anti-trust laws, the studios have to show a profit or else. That meant cutting down the overhead costs that theatres could once absorb.

Miss Grable was earning an estimated $5,000 a week plus big bonuses at the end of each picture. Studios now figure they can avoid such year-around expenses and merely hire talent by the picture. The three-dimension revolution has caused fewer pictures to be made, requiring fewer actors.

This points to the decline of the star system. The studios are letting many of their established stars go and building few new ones.

The gorgeous blonde said she has wanted her freedom for the last 18 months but the studio refused until now.

She wants to do pictures at other studios, appear and record with her husband, band leader Harry James, and do radio and TV. She also wants free time to follow her horses, which have been a convenient enterprise. One of her horses, Big Noise, has earned $100,000.

Hail Damage Claims Show Big Jump Among Alberta Growers

CALGARY (CP)—The Calgary office of the Alberta hail insurance board announced Thursday that heavy hail damage throughout the province has been confirmed by the increasing number of hail insurance claims pouring in.

Manager Glen Elder said 216 claims, way above average and almost double the number at this time last year, have been filed to date. Some 10,000 Alberta farmers have taken hail insurance coverage on 1953 crops.

Claims have been filed from as far north as Peace River, south to Foremost, west to Lethbridge and east to the Saskatchewan border.

Hail damage was reported for 12 separate days in June. Heaviest damage was reported in a narrow belt about 90 miles southeast of Calgary and on a line from Didsbury to Acme.

PREPARED FOR LONG STRIKE

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan Transportation Co. told its 220 striking employees Thursday that it is resigned to a strike "of long duration" unless union employees accept the wage offer contained in a conciliation board majority report.

As the third day of the strike came to a close, only one minor incident was reported on picket lines that have tied up part of the province's transportation.

In Regina, picketing union members attempted to prevent an oil-truck driver from leaving the STC garage after he had taken in a load of bunker fuel. The strikers took the driver's keys from him, but returned them quietly following police warnings.

The strike notice was posted Monday following a week-end breakdown in negotiations between the company and the

Times Crosswords Answer

Puzzle No. 14

COMMENTS:

CLUES ACROSS

1. STARTING is best. The phrase "a young actor" suggests an immature start in life, and this is more apt than STARTING in more apt than STARTING.
2. SURE is best. The clue says "all times." Every garden has a SURE, and only as certain times of the year. Usually this doesn't apply to SURE.
3. HEAT is best. It isn't the SEAT itself you might enjoy; it is the heat that makes it a money-making proposition.
4. LITTS is best. The clue says "a little bit." The words "LITTS" are not likely to be used in a SURE, but not so much for DOGS which are not normally kept as a money-making proposition.
5. DOGS is best. The clue says "it pays to look after DOGS." This is a very apt clue for DOGS, but not so much for DOGS which are not normally kept as a money-making proposition.
6. STAGES is best. Heavy rain will soon small STAGES. STAGES are not likely to be STAGES, but will be more concerned with the quality and reputation of the theatre.
7. RISE is best. The clue says "the more you RISE, the more you RISE." This is a very apt clue for RISE, but not so much for RISE which are not normally kept as a money-making proposition.
8. HEAR is best. If you want to HEAR the radio and can't, it's a pity. You are unlikely to be able to listen to it, and doubtless have other diversions.
9. ROSE is best. Since a ROSE is strictly for utility, quality certainly needs to be borne in mind. When choosing a ROSE, quality may have some importance but its appearance is more likely to be the main consideration.
10. LEAP is best. Since it may well be completely responsible for an average person to LEAN over a high one.
11. DRIVER is best. DRIVER must be reasonably good to satisfy ANY golfer. A lesser golfer will be quite satisfied with a comparatively poor DRIVER, but only a GOOD DRIVER will satisfy a professional.
12. PEST is best. Since the clue says "on a large scale," it is when dealing with PESTS on a large scale that special knowledge becomes necessary. Some special knowledge is needed for in order to deal with PESTS even on a small scale.
13. GONG is best. Because a GONG might break the silence. A GONG, as such, doesn't break the silence, only its first note.
14. CALL is best. The clue says "the one who makes a strong appeal to the imagination." CALL is a strong appeal, since it is in this mood that the sea is least impressive.

Opening Symphony Concert at Famed Gardens on Sunday

First of a series of outdoor concert by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra will be given in Butchart's Gardens Sunday afternoon at 2.30 in the famed Italian garden.

Informality will be the keynote of concert attendance. Chairs will be supplied but persons wishing to bring rugs and cushions and sit on the grass and rocks are encouraged to do so.

A special stage has been erected for the orchestra and Ian Ross, owner of the gardens, says he plans to build a permanent concert hall if the concert series proves successful.

A new parking lot has been opened and the general parking area lies between the gardens and West Saanich Road. Special guides will direct traffic. Additional restroom facilities will be provided.

No extra admission to the gardens will be charged for the concerts, Mr. Ross states.

Assurances that the best interests of the people of B.C. will be served was given today by victorious candidates in Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt ridings.

W. N. Chant and Percy Wright are out of town. But victory statements of other candidates follow:

Mrs. Lydia Arsens, SC, Victoria: "We are naturally very thrilled with our victory in Victoria. Our only regret so far is the loss of Mr. Gunderson in Oak Bay, whose defeat will be greatly felt by all Social Crediters."

"He is an outstandingly capable and fine man, and we hope Mr. Bennett can place him in some advisory capacity."

"I deeply appreciate the wonderful support given me, and sincerely thank all who worked so hard. I fully realize the great responsibility and the sacred trust bestowed upon me. I hope and pray I shall prove worthy of that trust."

GIBBS' ASSESSMENT

P. A. Gibbs, Liberal, Oak Bay: "In assessing the election result in Oak Bay, certainly the first count suggested a trend towards Social Credit, and a definite movement away from the Conservative party, yet the alternative votes cast by both the CCF voters and the Conservative voters was preponderantly for the Liberal candidate, notably so in the Conservative ballots. This would suggest that the people of Oak Bay desire to stay on the centre of the road, and do not concur in proposals for unorthodox experimentation in government finance. My election is also an expression of our people's confidence in myself, and in the manner in which I have served the community of Oak Bay."

"I would say with due humility that I sincerely appreciate and respect the confidence shown by the voters, and assure them I shall continue to serve not only in the interest of the people of Oak Bay, but also for the best interests of our wonderful province."

NO MORE POLITICS

John Tildalle, SC, Saanich: "As far as I am concerned, the election is over, and there are no such things as Liberals, Conservatives, CCF's or Social Crediters. They are all constituents of Saanich riding."

"I have been given the responsibility of representing all of the people of Saanich, not just a portion, and will govern myself accordingly."

"I hope to meet with organizations representing labor, industry and agriculture—not to talk to them, but to hear their viewpoints."

CALLS FOR UNITY

H. J. Bruch, SC, Esquimalt: "I wish to thank the electorate of Esquimalt for the honor and trust they have bestowed upon me. I sincerely hope all differences will now be forgotten, so that we can co-operate and work together in order to obtain for the people of Esquimalt and B.C. the results they want from the management of their affairs."

"I wish especially to thank all those who contributed in any way to the success of the campaign."

Milk 'War' Drops Price to 4½c Quart

RUSHVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Milk was almost free today in this western Illinois community of some 3,000 residents. The price of a quart of milk Thursday was 4½ cents. There were indications it might be lower today. The normal price is 19 to 20 cents a quart. But the price cuts started a month ago between three milk producing companies with each distributor bettering reductions made by a competitor.

8 Years 'Missing', War Veteran Turns Up Safe

EAST LOFTUS, Eng. (AP)—Herbert Armsby is the first name on the village memorial to its dead of the Second World War.

But Thursday, more than eight years after he was posted as missing in France, 28-year-old Armsby came home.

Armsby said he lost his memory after being treated in a hospital at Ghent, Belgium, in February, 1945. He was taken in by a Belgian family and had been living there ever since.

He said he recovered his memory earlier this year, but feared to return to England because he would be classed as a deserter by the army.

However, Armsby said he learned a few days ago that the Queen had declared a Coronation year amnesty for deserters and decided to come home.

He received a joyous greeting from his astonished 70-year-old parents.

The names of their other two sons are on the war memorial, too—John, killed in Sicily in 1942, and William, killed in Burma in 1945.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

By L. G. ROBINSON, DDS

Minerals, Vitamins in Good Food

(This is one of a series of articles prepared by the B.C. Dental Association as a public service. They will appear daily except Saturday.)

Go into the kitchen of the wise mother and see the colorful display of the food she prepares for her family.

First and most important, of course, is the white of milk—the most perfect food. For milk is the cheapest and richest source of minerals and vitamins for all—especially for children. Growing children should have a quart a day, with half that amount for adults.

With white as a background, the dark of cereals is a contrast. These, too, are good and inexpensive sources of minerals and vitamins—especially the mineral iron, and vitamin B. Vitamin B is of particular value in building and maintaining the health of the gums, or soft tissues of the mouth.

Now, the bright color of fresh vegetables—the brilliant yellow of carrots; the deep green of the outside leaves of lettuce, cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts and spinach. A whole alphabet of vitamins comes from these vegetables, and we should have from two to four servings of them daily, and raw when possible, of course.

Golden oranges, the yellow of lemons and bananas, the reds and yellows of apples—these are popular foods, and rich in vitamins, too. Again, of course, we should eat them raw when possible, but if not, the wise mother tries to give each child almost a glassful of the juices each day.

Besides supplying the important vitamins, mother knows that raw fruits are what we call detergent foods, as well. That means they are foods that tend to leave the teeth clean, rather than covered with sticky and pasty deposits in the crevices and hidden spots around the teeth.

So the wise mother always tries to serve a cleansing raw fruit after meals, instead of syrupy or pasty desserts.

Of course, no matter how the meal ends, junior is never excused that important duty with the tooth brush, as soon as possible after eating.

All Canucks In Korea Get Federal Vote

Balloting Scheduled Between Aug. 3-8

KOREA (CP)—Whether they are in Korea front-line positions, or in rear areas of the Far East command, Canadians serving in this theatre will be able to vote in the forthcoming federal election.

About 5,500 Canadian soldiers in Korea and Japan will be eligible to cast their ballots. In addition there are sailors with the three Canadian destroyers normally on duty in the Far East, and RCAF fliers on attachment with the United States 5th Air Force.

Arrangements already are under way for the balloting, which will be from Aug. 3 to Aug. 8 in this theatre. Voting in Canada will be Aug. 10.

VOTING CENTRES

Ottawa has instructed the 25th Canadian Infantry brigade to decide how many voting centres will be needed to poll the army in the Far East and to name a deputy returning officer for each. The DRO's will be officers.

Senior returning officer in the Far East will be Lt.-Col. Neil Gemmell of Calgary and Ottawa, officer commanding 25th Canadian reinforcement group in Kure, Japan.

Approximately 15 polling centres will be set up, staff officers say. Wing Commander J. C. Hollies, formerly of Western Command headquarters in Edmonton and now of the judge-advocate-general's staff in Ottawa, is due in Tokyo July 6 to brief staff officers and the DRO's on the conduct of the polling.

He will spend a week in Korea and Japan giving briefings, returning to Canada from Tokyo July 14.

The actual polling is to be supervised, say reports here, by Lt.-Col. Alime Desrosiers, of Montreal.

Spread through a five-day period, the operation will enable the polls to move from the forward companies back through the successive echelons to Tokyo.

290 Estimated Traffic Deaths

CHICAGO (UP) — The National Safety Council said today that 290 persons will probably be killed in traffic accidents during the July 4 holiday.

About 40,000,000 Americans will flock to the highways during the summer's first big holiday week-end the council estimated.

Railroads, airlines and bus-lines were also expected to be jammed.

Council president Ned H. Dearborn pleaded with holiday motorists not to drive too fast.

"Speed is the principal factor in serious accidents," he said. "It works two ways—gives you less time and less control in an accident situation, and greatly increases the chance of death or serious injury if an accident does happen."

The U.S. Weather Bureau said Independence Day will be a typical summer day in most of the U.S.

Warm weather was forecast for most parts of the south and the north and middle Atlantic states were promised cooler, less humid weather.

Scattered thundershowers were predicted in the late afternoon or evening for the southern states and the central and northern great plains region.

The safety council's 290 highway death prediction fell below the 356 persons who were killed in traffic accidents during last year's July 4 holiday.

However, that holiday covered three days. This year's starts at 6 p.m. today and lasts until midnight Sunday.

Sandys, 45, is the fourth casualty in the ranks of Churchill's cabinet.

Churchill himself is resting under doctors' orders; Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, is convalescing after an operation in Boston; Harold Macmillan, minister of housing and local government, goes into hospital next Monday for a medical check and possibly an operation.

Sandys hopes to be back at his office by Monday. He was earlier reported to be suffering with foot trouble, the result of a war injury, but it has been decided to postpone this operation indefinitely.

ON THE OUTDOOR FRONT

With ROY THORSEN

One of those chairs every house-owner desires—a Lazy-Boy—will again be the first fishing prize in this year's benefit salmon derby for the Queen Alexandra Solarium in Saanich Inlet.

The big derby will be held in Saanich Inlet, July 26. It is the biggest one-day fishing classic on the local outdoor front. The top women's prize in this derby will be one of those triple sets of coffee tables (you can use them for tea, too).

The prize for the junior (both sexes) who reels in the biggest salmon on 26th will be a three-speed bicycle.

The chair, tables and bicycle are the contribution of the Victoria Daily Times to this derby, promoted annually to get a great big bundle of dollars for the Solarium, which cares for and cures our crippled children. The Times works hand-in-hand with the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association in this event.

There are a number of other prizes but there is one main award called the "mystery prize" which the $1 ticket-sellers can tell the purchasers about. It's really worth the ticket price. And you don't have to fish to get it.

What we have mentioned so far are the chief prizes, but there are many more awards in the derby for the guy or gal who wants to fish.

And if you want to have a look at this wonderful show of prizes they will be displayed in the windows of Wilson and Lemfesty, 1225 Government, from Monday night until the night before derby day. Some of the feature ladder derby prizes of the VSIAA went into the windows of Roger Month's, 618 Fort, Thursday night.

The daily pictures shown on these pages are proof that Saanich Inlet is producing the best fishing in many years. There are reports also that saltchuck fishing is the order from Parksville north to Campbell River.

Trout fishing on this end of the island has dropped off considerably, but in the Campbell River-Sayward-Courtney and Comox country lake fishing is still rated as tops. Many Victorians invading those lakes during the past week have scored limits, or near-limits.

People have asked me what plugs are the best for salmon fishing. It's a tough question. But it seems to me that when a plug becomes a "rage," everybody buys one and the result is that most of the fishermen who catch fish are using the same plug.

That does not mean that the plug being used is the "best enticer" of salmon. It is because so many are using it. I can remember when the Lucky Louie was first introduced. I caught a lot of salmon and everybody dropped their other lures and adopted the Lucky Louie. The scores were terrific. The present rage is the Mac's Squid plug. Sporting goods stores have had to replenish their supplies many times over to meet the demand of the fishing public because in the earlier part of the year they were used so successfully.

MEMORIES OF OUTDOOR FRONT VETERANS: Today's personality is Ernie Todd, veteran sportsman. He recalls the visit here several years ago of Ben Hogan, of international golfing fame.

"He (Ben) was always reported as being a cool, calm and collected gent when he was playing golf," reported Ernie. "Well, I asked him what excitement he would like most. He said he would like to go fishing and catch a salmon."

"We did. We went out to Creed's at Brentwood and the late Hugh Creed took us out. I explained to Ben that if ever he saw one of the two rods we had out doing nips-ups because of the strike that he should grab the line," said Todd.

"Well, we'd been out a considerable time when one of the rods started going into gyrations. I pointed this out to Hogan and he just said, 'let it go; we've got a whole day ahead of us!'"

Todd said he was flabbergasted. "That man must be totally cool in every phase of his life. I thought that he might be different when off the golf course. I was wrong," said Ernie, who developed a left shooting-eye when the right went bad.

Palmer Equals Mark, Leads PGA Qualifiers

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)—Johnny Palmer was the only tornado to strike the Birmingham Country Club Thursday, and the smallest, moon-faced North Carolinian swept to the qualifying medal of the PGA golf tournament with a record-equaling 134.

Grooving his shots through wild gusts and racing against an anticipated thunderstorm expected to bring 70-mile-an-hour winds, the chubby pro from Radin, N.C., clinched the $250 medal prize with a five-under-par 66.

He thus tied two records—the course and the PGA qualifying marks.

Vic Ghezzi, 1941 champion, dropped sharply off his opening day 66 and, after going over par on two of the first three holes, settled for a 73 and a total of 139.

Chandler Harper, the 1950 champion from Portsmouth, Va., finished with a 69 for 27, good for second place. Pete Cooper of White Plains, N.Y., followed with 138, representing a pair of 69s.

The cut-off point for making the 64-man championship flight, which begins with two 18-hole sudden-death rounds of match play Friday, was 149.

Helping the Solarium

This is Capt. A. C. Cruchley, 2550 Arbutus Road. "Cap." as he is called by members of the angling club, an army man all his life and retired with the rank of captain, is a member of the promotion committee for the "Anglers' Times" benefit salmon derby in Saanich Inlet July 26 for the Queen Alexandra Solarium. Cap doesn't talk much about his army career, but army sources reveal his (while an RSM) was a double-award record for distinguished action in the First World War, winning the DCM and MM on the overseas battlefronts. He came out of retirement and served in the Second World War with the ordnance corps. Capt. Cruchley was 1949 president of the VSIAA and president of the Chilnook Club in 1950-51. Born in London, Eng., he came to Canada in 1904, to Victoria in 1938. He combs Saanich Inlet almost continuously during the year. One year his score was 1,232 pounds of salmon. He gave most of it away, but sent a lot to relatives in England. Solarium tickets are $1 each. Have you got yours yet?

Canadian Golfers In Victory

FORMBY, England (Reuters)—The touring Canadian women's golf team Thursday defeated a British junior women's team, 4-1, with two matches halved, but took second place to the senior British team in a four-day Commonwealth tournament.

Final results: Britain, 16½ points, Canada 12½, British juniors 7, New Zealand, 6.

Marlene Stewart, 19-year-old Canadian and British champion from Fonthill, Ont., was held to a draw by 18-year-old Janet Robertson. Miss Stewart lost both her other singles games in the tournament.

She teamed up with Mrs. J. H. Todd of Victoria to win one of Thursday's foursomes, however.

Mrs. Todd won her singles match as did Barbara Davies, also of Victoria. Miss Davies also teamed with Mrs. Graeme Pyke of Montreal to win the other foursome.

Mary's in Easy Victory

Mary's Coffee Bar combined three home runs and 21 hits to turn back Esquimalt Athletics, 19-9, Thursday night at Heywood Avenue in senior "B" softball play.

The homers were stuck by George Coldwell, Lorne Ettinger and pitcher Mark Cunningham. Dave George got credit for the win but was relieved by Cunningham and Ted Aldous.

Linescore follows:
Mary's Coffee Bar 614 603 622-19 21 3
Esquimalt AA 119 651 616-9 21 3
George, Aldous (6), Cunningham (7), and Peterson: Simmons and Bremner

Next game: tonight, Grand Spot vs. Tillamook, Heywood Avenue Park, 6:45.

SLUGGETT VICTOR

Butler's Nip Student Nine

Butler's Aces 8, Chinese Students 7
Archie Sluggett would be quite happy if he didn't have to pitch another ball until playoff time in the Senior A Men's Softball League.

Thursday night at Central Park the dippy-do artist, of Butler Bros. Aces was practically shot-putting the ball up to the plate in the final innings, but hung on to lead his teammates to an 8-7 win over Chinese Students.

Actually the game was won and lost by both teams on several occasions with each team committing three errors.

Stan Tenning opened on the mound for Students but stuck around for only one and two-thirds innings. Aces jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first inning on two singles, two walks and a pair of wild pitches.

Aces picked up another run in the second when Jim Turner walked, advanced on another wild pitch and scored as Gordie Chow threw the ball into centre field on a play at second.

Students scored three runs in the last of the second when Bud Ross, who relieved Tenning, hit the bloop double with bases loaded.

Students made it 4-4 in the fourth when Gordie Jones got a broken bat single, was sacrificed along by George Brown, and scored on a clean single down the line by Chow.

A two-run ground rule triple by Eddie Lou in the sixth gave the Students a 6-4 lead, but the same Lou made himself the goat in the seventh trying to make an acrobatic throw to first base after he had forced Archie Sluggett at second base.

Willie Benn had opened the inning with a home run in the trees in left and Frank Kilshaw followed with a single to centre. Archie Sluggett walked and Ronnie Benn popped to second for the first out. Hal Yardley hit a potential double play ball to third and Sluggett was out at second, but Lou's relay to first ended up high in the stands and Kilshaw scored on the error to tie the ball game at 6-6.

Willie Turner walked to keep the rally alive and Phil Benn dropped in a single to right that scored Yardley with the go-ahead run.

A walk to Willie Benn, a stolen base, passed ball, and a double by Sluggett drove in what proved to be the winning run for Aces in the eighth.

Tonight at 6:45 Capital City Servicemen will meet the improving Navy squad in a regular league game at Central Park.

Short score follows:
Butler Bros. Aces 510 509 516-8 8 3
Chinese Students 650 102 624-7 8 3
Sluggett and J. Turner: Kilshaw (6); Training, Ross (3) and Chow

Empire Games Officials Seek 'Expert' Advice

VANCOUVER (CP)—Empire games officials here have called for expert help in choosing the contentious site for rowing events at the 1954 games.

General chairman Stanley V. Smith has asked Fred Carter of Toronto, permanent secretary of the Canadian Rowing Association, to come here and help pick the site.

In a telegram to Carter, Smith said: "Our organizing committee would appreciate if you could arrange visit Vancouver at earliest date for three-five days to help choose and give approval to final selection rowing site."

"Several good courses available nearby but all with certain technical disadvantages. Most desirable location are about seven hours motor travel, but these raise new administrative problems."

It is unlikely Carter would be able to come here until next week. There is a CRA meeting in Toronto Saturday.

Three of the proposed rowing sites are in the Greater Vancouver area. They are Coal Harbor, Dollarton and Deep Cove.

Tentative interior sites are at Penticton, Kelowna and Nelson, while several Vancouver Island spots are also under consideration.

While here recently, Kenneth (Candy) Duncan of London, honorary secretary of the British Empire Games Federation, said the federation was opposed to moving the rowing site from the Vancouver area.

Rainiers Maintain Coast Lead

Seattle is getting even with Los Angeles for the humiliation suffered in their recent series in Los Angeles, where the Angels won five games of seven.

If Thursday night's score in Seattle, 15-0 in favor of the Rainiers, was an accurate margin between the teams' capabilities, Los Angeles might well abandon its hopes for winning the Pacific Coast League pennant.

But Friday night is another night. The Angels hope so, at least. Seattle had a 6-0 lead by the third, added four more in the fifth and three more in the sixth. Bill Evans of Grand Junction, Colo., toyed with the Los Angeles hitters as he held them to five bingles. The Rainiers pounded Cal McLish, Bob Spicer and Alan Ihde for 16 base hits and the Angels committed four errors to compound their miseries.

Hollywood stayed a half game behind Seattle by edging Sacramento, 2-0, as Harry Fisher pitched a three-hitter against the Solons. Dale Long blasted a tremendous homer in the eighth, his 16th of the season, over the left-centrefield fence.

Steeplechase Mark

HELSINKI (AP)—Oiva Rinteenpaa, a young Finnish dentist, ran the world's fastest 3,000-metre steeplechase race Thursday, stealing the spotlight from a star-studded touring American track and field team.

Rinteenpaa was timed in 8:44.4 over the Olympic stadium course where Horace Ashenfelter of the United States ran the previous fastest chase in the 1952 Olympics. The Finn's time was an exact second faster than Ashenfelter's astonishing mark. Rinteenpaa ran fourth in the Olympics.

There is no official world record for the steeplechase since courses vary in their make-up.

Guldborg Draws Release From Caps

VANCOUVER (BUP)—The Vancouver Capilanos of the Western International Baseball League have lost the services of pitcher Bud Guldborg for the second half of the split Western International League season.

Vancouver general manager Dewey Soriano announced Thursday that Guldborg has been given his release to make a deal for himself. Soriano said Guldborg's wife Akpatok Island in Labrador's Ungava Bay was named from an Eskimo word meaning "place of birds."

SASK. LIBERALS WILL NAME NEW LEADER IN NEAR FUTURE

REGINA (CP)—The Leader-Post in a newspaper story Thursday said a Liberal leader to replace Walter Tucker in the Saskatchewan legislature is almost certain to be named within the next few months.

The Leader-Post quoted reliable sources as indicating a new leader will be named since the probability of a convention this year "appears remote."

Mr. Tucker has resigned as Liberal leader and will run as a Liberal for Rosthern constituency in the Aug. 10 federal election.

HILLARY DESCRIBES MT. EVEREST ASSAULT

300 Feet From Top Pair Thought They Would Fail

Sir Edmund Hillary, 34, for the first time tells in his own words how Everest was finally conquered. His story, delayed by the Indian monsoon, was told to Peter Jackson, Reuters correspondent who climbed the lower reaches of Everest in the wake of the British team.

BY SIR EDMUND HILLARY

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters)—The story of our final ascent really begins on the morning of May 28 after a rough night on the south col.

Tenzing and I made our way up the walls of the great basin to the southeast ridge. As we toiled forward we came to the tattered remains of the camp set up by the Swiss expedition last year when Raymond Lambert and Tenzing reached 28,215 feet.

We slowly made our way up, looking for a camp site. Your mental processes at this height are not very good even with oxygen and we were getting worried.

Then Tenzing suggested turning leftward, recalling a possible site he had seen while with Lambert. We finally reached the place, a slope of 30 degrees. It was good compared with the steep path we traversed on the way up. The site was 27,900 feet above sea level. For two hours we hacked to make a platform for our tent.

Considering where we were, it was not a bad night.

We dozed a bit, using oxygen. But we could only have it for a few hours as we had to save it for the final assault. When we were not dozing, we lay in our sleeping bags heating soup and making hot lemonade.

Sun came with the morning. At 6.30, we strapped on our oxygen equipment and goggles and started along the steep narrow ridge winding upward.

The last 400 feet of the south summit were very steep. Attached by rope, we took turns to rest while the other went ahead cutting steps.

At last, we stood on top of the south peak. On one side it dropped away at a slope of 40 degrees. On the right great cornices of snow overhung a drop of thousands of feet. In spite of the steep angle, the ridge was in good shape and we kept going steadily until we came to a 40-foot smooth-faced rock (about 300 feet off the summit).

It had no footholds and we thought we would never get up it. But on the right side we found a space filled with packed snow. Tenzing drove the shaft of his ice-axe into it and anchored me to it.

By wedging myself into the gap, I managed to force myself up and haul Tenzing after me. This last effort took us to the top of the world.

It was almost a surprise to see the top; a firm snow cone forming a perfect summit with room for several persons to stand. It was 11.30, five hours after we had set out from our final camp.

Tenzing threw his arms around

Oak Bay Council To Attend Parley

Reeve P. A. Gibbs and the council of Oak Bay will attend the annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities in a body, it was announced at a council meeting Wednesday night.

The convention will be held at the Hotel Vancouver Oct. 28, 29, 30.

Notification of the convention stated that the city of North Vancouver would join with Vancouver authorities in entertaining the UBCM delegates.

The township of Adajala in Simcoe county, Ontario, was so named after a daughter of the Indian chief Tecumseh.

me and we embraced happily.

I got out my camera and took pictures of him holding the flag of the United Nations, Britain, Nepal and India.

I scouted around for signs of George Mallory and Andrew Irvine, who vanished into the mist near the summit in 1924. There was nothing to be seen of them.

Tenzing and I sat on the snow and we stared at the country below. From the top, we could see over the jumbled mass of Himalayan snow peaks.

We drank sweetened lemonade and nibbled mint cake as we sat there picking out places like the Shekar Dzong and Rongbuk Glaciers in Tibet.

By now our oxygen was running short and finally after about 20 minutes we retraced our steps.

In an hour we reached the south peak. We made a brief stop at our camp for hot lemonade and to collect our sleeping bags and kit.

Then we went down to the south col and ran into George Lowe and Alfred Gregory (other members of the expedition) coming to meet us.

They took our loads for the last few yards. Tired out, we crept into our tents.

Coldwell Changes Itinerary to Include City In Campaign; Pearkes Arranges Speaking Dates

A change in itinerary has allowed national CCF leader M. J. Coldwell to speak in Victoria Aug. 3.

Two Contestants Register Dodos In Gyro Contest

Two visitors to the Gyro annual hole-in-one contest sank perfect shots Wednesday night. Saturday they will compete with other finalists for an expensive trip to Honolulu.

Sure-shots were Jerry Cruikshanks, 1284 Vista Heights, and W. Coates, 837 Esquimalt Road. Gyros say last year's record of 22,360 shots will likely be surpassed before the concluding day of the carnival, Saturday. But not many of the golf balls are landing within the finalists' circle.

One or two balls have cleared the fence, Yates Street, and the Yates Street fire hall 200 yards away!

Improving of a four-and-a-half acre playground at Cadboro Bay with carnival profits is the aim of the club.

Wednesday's prize-winners included Mrs. J. Sabitson, who won a grocery hamper, and Mrs. R. Coles, 400 Cuddehul Road, who won a lamp. Mr. Cruikshank won $15 for his hole-in-one and Mr. Coates $10 for his. Don Doble of 752 Newbury won $5 for a shot which was nine inches away from the cup.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

What does a columnist think about when he should be thinking about his column?

Boy, what an easy job this is! If the boss ever catches on to what a cinch I have, I'll have to pay him for working here! All I do is roll a piece of paper into a typewriter, press a few keys, and out comes a polished gem of wit and wisdom.

Well, I can dream, can't I? But I wish six days a week didn't come so awful frequent. "Didn't come so awful frequent!" Watch your grammar, Roberts, or the newspaper will fire you and you'll have to get a job writing radio commercials.

What was that stupid commercial I heard yesterday? Something to do with a symphony concert in Butchart Gardens. Guess I wasn't hearing correctly—because it seemed to me the commercial said hot dogs would be for sale.

Not even a radio commercial could be that silly. Imagine... "STEP RIGHT UP FOLKS, GETCHA CONEY ISLAND RED HOTS... we will now hear Beethoven's Fourth with or without mustard and relish... GETCHA RED HOTS..."

No, I must have been mistaken. Too bad; if it were true, I could do a column on it...

Speaking of doing a column, how about doing a column? Now there's a profound and brilliant idea if I ever heard one. Only trouble is, I don't feel like doing a column. But that's no excuse; I don't suppose the bus driver feels like driving a bus this morning. And the coffee shop waitress is not especially enthusiastic about serving coffee. And quite likely the cop on the beat wishes he weren't the cop on the beat.

They do their duty. Why shouldn't I do my duty? Of course, they do something useful. Nobody could ever call writing a column useful.

On the other hand, I have developed the bad habit of eating so perhaps I'd better do a column.

Let's see, now, what'll it be? Wonder how I could lead up to the pun which popped into my alleged head this morning... what was it? Oh, yes, one crazy guy wishing another crazy guy manicky returns of the day...

Nape, won't do. Too artificial. Besides, the desk wouldn't pass it. Maybe I could persuade Punch to turn out a column today. He hasn't done one for a long time. He's been rather subdued since the election... must ask him why one of these days...

How about a piece on the victorious candidates? I could start out by saying we won't know where they stand until they take their seats in the House.

On the other hand, I could urge all constituents to skip Between Times today and read the comic page. The literary quality is much higher there.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Sunday Gospel Services To Return to Beacon Hill

Tenth season of Sunday evening Gospel services in Beacon Hill Park will begin with a program of sacred music at 7:15 and service at 7:30 Sunday night in Cameron Memorial Pavilion. The services, under auspices of the Victoria Committee, Christian Businessmen's Committee International, will continue until the end of August. In keeping with its own interdenominational character, the committee has arranged for each service to be conducted by representatives of different Christian denominations. Guest church Sunday will be the Free Methodist, under Rev. James E. Campbell, pastor. "Our desire is to reach as many as possible with the Christian gospel," said Dr. Vernon B. Taylor, chairman of the Victoria Committee, today.

Water in the children's swimming ponds at Beacon Hill and Central Parks is changed every other day and daily checks are made by city sanitary inspectors, a city parks official said today.

Both swimming ponds are now open.

Ronald J. Horsland, Hilliers, Vancouver Island, was fined $50 in Saanich police court Thursday by Magistrate H. C. Hall for careless driving.

Former Canon of Christ Church Dies in England

Word has been received of the death at Sunderland, Eng., on Thursday, of Canon A. Silva-White, a churchman well known on Vancouver Island nearly 40 years ago. He was 86.

He was born in London and came to Canada late in the 19th century. He spent ten years as a rancher in Alberta before entering the church. He was ordained deacon by the Archbishop of Rupert's Land in 1893, and a priest in 1894. Mr. Silva-White came to the Diocese of British Columbia in 1904.

In 1911 he was appointed a canon of Christ Church.

Relatives surviving include Cyril Silva-White of 55 View Royal Avenue, who spent years in the priesthood and now is a partner of A. M. Taylor Spiliotis in the insurance business. Another son is Raymond Silva-White.

Nude Swimming Costs Sailors $115 in Fines

Three sailors involved in a nude bathing party at Sayward Beach—the south end of Island View Beach, Saanich—were fined a total of $115 in Saanich police court Thursday.

Saanich police said that five RCMP men went to the beach Wednesday afternoon, stripped, and went for a swim. They had an audience of about 300 holiday picnickers at the beach.

One of them, Robert Charles W. Irwin, pleaded guilty to indecent exposure. He was fined $15 on that count. He was also fined $25 for assaulting a police officer and another $50 for consuming liquor in a public place.

Another nude bather, Robert Sheridan, was fined $15 for indecent exposure. A third member of the party, Herbert T. Milligan, was fined $10 for being intoxicated in a public place.

NAVY VET TO FIGHT FOR RIGHTS

Government Builds Road Over Holding

A land battle is shaping up between a young navy veteran and the B.C. government over construction of a portion of the Island Highway through his property at 117 Helmcken Road.

The landowner, J. W. Knowles, says he refused a government offer to buy a portion of his land as the offer was too low. But the road is going through anyway.

Mrs. Knowles, a father of three, bought 211 acres of property for $2,500 under the Veterans' Land Act in 1948. The land fronts on Helmcken and adjoins the CNR line at the rear. The right-of-way for the new highway cuts it in half.

The department of public works approached Mr. Knowles about eight months ago, but he referred the agent to the VLA for settlement.

However, a VLA official said today, it is up to the VLA settlers to straighten out their own difficulties in such circumstances.

LATER OFFER

Five months later the representative returned to offer $400 for the rear half of the land and plus $50 for removal of a chicken house, says Mr. Knowles.

Mr. Knowles thought it was an unfair offer. Not only that, but the house, which he had built himself, would be left on a piece of land too small for resale under VLA regulations.

Prominent legion member and councillor in Esquimalt, J. E. Carey, took the matter up but was unable to see Public Works Minister P. A. Gagliardi. Mr. Carey says that since he has become interested in the case he has heard of 20 similar cases involving VLA landowners. But government authorities today said this claim was "a lot of eye-wash."

Public works department officials stated they thought Mr. Knowles home was built when he bought the property and will arbitrate with him on final settlement.

They said all other land transfers in the area were handled smoothly and to everyone's satisfaction.

Works department officials said today that Mr. Knowles will be invited to sit in on arbitration meetings with an umpire and a ruling will be arrived at in a "fair" manner.

Details of the proposed floral festival were considered this week by the sub-committee headed by Charles Nelles.

Their final blueprint will be handed to the chamber's Tourist Trade group for implementation and development of sponsorship. G. Conway Parrott is chairman of this group.

Dream of Mr. Nelles' sub-committee is an annual event to rival the Daffodil Festival at Puyallup, Wash., and the Portland Rose Show.

Art Knapp, who has seen similar shows in other countries, particularly The Netherlands, attended the sub-committee's meeting and made several suggestions.

The sub-committee also will seek the advice and assistance of such local organizations as

Master of Crafts to Teach in City

His first class starts work Saturday, July 11. Mr. Anderson has spent 20 years studying under masters of lithography, silk screen reproduction, etching, wood cuts and engraving. ## WEDDING STILL DISTANT

15-Year-Old Girl Gets Court Consent

The B.C. courts will allow a 15-year-old Victoria girl to marry a suitor of 21, whom she has never seen.

Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane gave approval in Supreme Court today for issuance of a marriage license.

But the wedding's still far off.

The girl is Sugjit Kaur, 597 John Street. The young man is Gian Singh of Ghural, India.

The application was submitted to the court in May by lawyer Gordon Cameron, who said it was necessary for the court to approve the marriage before the federal department of immigration would consider an application to allow the young man into Canada.

The court would not have had to be consulted had the girl been over 16, since her parents have given consent.

Mr. Cameron said today Gian Singh's application for entry into Canada was now before the proper federal authorities. He said it would take between 18 months and two years for Singh to enter Canada if his application is approved.

He said Sugjit Kaur would be 18 by the time the wedding could take place.

Mr. Justice Macfarlane, who had appeared reluctant to sanction the marriage when the first application was made, relented after having received further information from officials of the immigration department. Marriages arranged by parents are still common among East Indians, counsel said.

At its next meeting Thursday, July 9, consideration will be given to a proposed native Indian celebration centring on native culture. Representatives of the Indian tribes will be invited to take part in the discussion.

Also on the sub-committee's agenda are plans for Chinese New Year's celebrations in January, a program for May 24 as Victoria's own day, and speedboat and sailing regattas in September-October.

SEARCH STILL FRUITLESS FOR MISSING SWIMMER

COURTENAY—An intensive search is under way here for Donald Munce, assistant Safeway store manager, missing since Tuesday night after planning a swim in Courtenay River.

A previous report that his body had been found Wednesday night was denied today.

Mr. Munce, war veteran and father of three children, left his store Tuesday at 7 p.m. after remarking that he was going for a swim.

His car was found Wednesday morning at the foot of 17th Street, near the river.

FAIR WEATHER STAYS AWHILE, SAYS PROPHET

Today's fine weather will continue overnight and Saturday, according to the weatherman.

A high-pressure ridge is building on the coast, he said, that should deflect a storm that is now giving rain at the weather ship, 900 miles west of here.

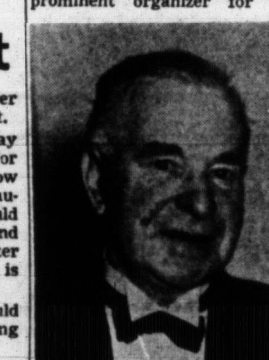

Winds will be southerly at 15 miles, and temperatures will be between 50 and 60 degrees tonight and Saturday.

Former Sheriff Seeks Liberal Nomination

Duncan McBride, former Victoria sheriff, will be the chief contender for the federal Liberal nomination tonight in the new riding of Esquimalt-Saanich.

The nominating convention will be held tonight at 8 at Royal Oak Hall.

A prominent Rotarian, Mr. McBride was for three years president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, for two years president of the Associated Vancouver Island Boards of Trade and is a former vice-president of the Burns Club. He was first vice-president and a Highland Games here in 1938, prominent organizer for the

Mr. McBride was Victoria's sheriff for 11 years, only recently retired. He was born in the Vale of Leven, Dumbartonshire, studied mechanical engineering and apprenticed with the famous Clyde shipbuilding firm of John Brown & Company. He helped build Cunard liners and men-of-war, went to sea for a spell.

He went into refrigeration engineering, then, and during the First World War became an adviser to the directors of transport.

In 1926 he came to Canada, was in charge of the cold storage plant at Ogden Point for the bondholders, ultimately leased it himself.

In 1942 he became sheriff.

Defeated Liberal provincial candidate Arthur Ash also is reported to be a possible contender for the nomination, but could not be reached for confirmation today.

Social Crediters hold their nominating convention tonight at Mount View High School.

Among the candidates are Lionel Speller, James Audain and R. J. Pring.

Progressive Conservative candidate is Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, and CCF candidate is R. M. MacIntosh.

Scott Summons Public Meeting

Socred W. A. Scott has called a public meeting for 8 p.m. next Tuesday at Williams Hall, Broughton Street, where the recent suspension of two senior civil servants will be fully discussed.

Premier Queries Giovandi Margin On Fourth Count

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today Social Credit will ask for a recount in Nanaimo riding, where Tory Dr. Larry Giovando won an 18-vote margin victory over CCF'er David Stupich.

But the Socreds are interested in the fourth count where Dr. Giovando edged out Socred Earle Westwood, former mayor, by 10 votes.

Premier Bennett said recounts also may be asked in other close contests.

Mr. Stupich told The Times from Nanaimo he won't ask for a recount of ballots.

"I won't ask for it, but my campaign committee may want me to. But I'll argue against it," Mr. Stupich said.

His committee will meet this week-end to make a decision.

CITY LIBERAL MEETING SET

Victoria Liberals will nominate a candidate to contest the Aug. 10 federal election at a July 7 nominating convention at Liberal Headquarters, 1322A Government Street.

Among the possible candidates are former premier Byron Johnson, Times' publisher Stuart Keate, former deputy education minister Dr. H. T. Fairley and school trustee Austin Curtis.

Municipal Aid Possibility For Art Centre

Municipalities of Greater Victoria may yet be "legally" able to grant sums for maintenance of the Arts Centre at 1040 Moss Street.

A resolution calling for amendment to the Municipal Act to permit such financial aid was approved by the recent parley of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities at Nanaimo and will go before the Union of B.C. Municipalities in October.

City of Victoria presented the resolution following nearly two years of controversy over municipal contributions to the Arts Centre. City Council was advised it could not "legally" donate funds without amendment of the Municipal Act.

The meeting asked the government to rescind its present directive calling for a 17½% amusement tax on all entertainments sponsored by public commissions operating arenas. A new levy of 5% is asked.

The request will go through the UBCM together with application for amendment of the Amusement Tax Act to provide definite tax rates on entertainments sponsored by public commissions operating arenas.

Many municipalities in B.C. have asked for the change.

The island parley also asked for amendment to the Land Registry Act to provide for a special record of such public lands within municipal limits as parks and squares.

Reeve A. E. Bessley of North Cowichan was elected president of the Association and Mayor W. Henderson of Cumberland, vice-president. Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt and Councillor J. V. Johnson of Oak Bay are among executive members.

Trial Arising From Fatal Crash Postponed Here

Absence from the city of a principal police witness resulted today in postponement of the County Court trial of Roy Chudleigh, 1025 Bank Street.

Chudleigh, on bail, faces a charge of dangerous driving arising out of a two-car collision last Dec. 28 at Cadboro Bay and Foul Bay Roads. Chudleigh's three-year-old son died in the crash.

The trial was adjourned until Sept. 16.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Raspberries, Loganberries On Sale This Week! Mmmh!

By PENNY SAVER

Omigosh! Don't tell me it's Friday already! You know what that means, don't you? Yup... time to go shopping for some week-end special! It's certainly a good thing I didn't forget about our shopping date completely, because I really do have something "special" for you.

Baskets of raspberries and loganberries are on sale this week, and boy... do they look good! Just imagine a bowl of rasps swimming in thick cream, or the logans baked in a pie... maybe a la mode? Mmmmmh! Raspberries are 28 cents a basket and loganberries are 25 cents.

Wow! Are cantaloupes ever coming down in price! Last week they were 25 cents apiece, and I thought that was cheap! Now they're just 18 cents each, and they are a good size, too! Cantaloupe, filled with ice cream, of course, is scrumptious... but after a big dinner I can never finish mine. That's why I always buy the smaller fruit. Priced at two for 29 cents, small cantaloupes are every bit as sweet and juicy as the big ones... if not, more so!

I saw some peaches, today... firm, yet bright and rosy as apples! They were so pink, they didn't look like peaches at all... but I knew they were, the minute I sunk my teeth into one of the delicious things! They cost 25 cents for four.

Before I finish with the fruits, I'd better mention that red currants are 35 cents a pound.

Now for some up-to-date vegetable prices! New carrots are 10 cents a bunch, peas are two pounds for 45 cents, cabbages are 10 cents a head and beets are two pounds for 15 cents. New potatoes are five pounds for 25 cents and dry onions are three pounds for 25 cents.

Sea-fresh, unfrozen oysters from Sooke are simply out of this world... if they're dipped in bread crumbs and fried in butter! I'll bet I've sold you on them already! Half a pint costs you 48 cents.

Speaking of sea foods, fresh Coho salmon is 50 cents a pound, and sliced cod is 25 cents a pound.

Middle-Age Infatuation Call for Tact All Round

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

When a middle-aged man is infatuated with another woman what can his wife do? Consider this case:

(Q)—"I am writing in regard to a very good friend of mine and her husband. They have been married for 25 years, have grown children, and a very wonderful grandchild. They both think the world of this child. Now he tells my friend he is in love with a divorced woman with children. She is 15 years younger than he. I know he thinks an awful lot of his wife and he means everything to her. She has always been greatly devoted to him. He hasn't known this woman for long, only a few months. What would your advice be to my friend?"

(A) My advice to your friend, as would be my advice to any woman in her position, is to sit tight and do nothing. Unquestionably this is a passing phase and will not last. But it should be treated with great tact.

If your friend wants to keep her marriage from going on the rocks, tell her to treat this matter as a passing incident and not to take it too seriously. It won't be serious unless she makes it such.

Doubtless her husband is infatuated by the attentions of this younger woman. And it would clearly be to her advantage to catch him as a means of securing a home for her children. But if your friend calmly but firmly says, when and if her husband asks for a divorce, that she does not want to place such a stigma on her children and grandchild, the other woman will soon discover that her chances are hopeless and will look elsewhere.

Your friend's trump card should be her emphasis on the handicap to her grandchild that would come from a divorce. If he is as devoted to the child as you think, the last thing in the world he would want to do is hurt it in any way.

Salmon pink and white gladioli, white lilies and wild orange blossoms decorated the church for the ceremony, and floral clusters in the same shades marked the pews to which guests were ushered by Dave Bond, Vancouver, and Bill Hurst.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was an attractive picture in a gown of white lace and nylon net over satin. A beaded headpiece held her chapel veil of net edged with lace, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses and stephanotis. Her jewelry was a strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

Maid of honor was Miss Donald Ure, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid, Miss Joanne Dawe, cousin of the bride. ### Wedding in Sonora, Calif. Of Interest on Island

Of interest at Cowichan Station and at Milne's Landing, V.I., is the wedding of Lorna Doreen Davey to Wilfred Allan Millard, which took place Tuesday evening in Sonora, Calif. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Davey, Milne's Landing, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Millard, Cowichan Station.

The home of the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. L. D. Dixon, was the scene of the quiet family wedding. A traditional white satin gown, on train, with lily point sleeves and square neckline embroidered with seed pearls was worn by the attractive blonde bride. Her full-length veil, with embroidered, scalloped edging, foamed from a coronet of waxed orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of deep red roses and freesias.

A blue crepe dress with lace insertions on bodice and skirt was worn by the bride's mother. In the heart of each pink carnation in her corsage was embedded a tiny pink rosebud.

The reception was also held at the home of the bride's sister, "Saratoga Acres." A California-style wedding cake centred the bride's table and the couple received guests beneath an arch decorated with red roses.

Special guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wells, Santa Barbara, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. R. Wilson, San Carlos, Calif.

For traveling on honeymoon to Yosemite National Park, the bride chose a light blue silk corded dress with navy accessories. For her corsage she selected several roses from her bridal bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Millard are coming to Victoria to live at 1164 Esquimalt Road.

Fine Fabrics, Woven Works of Art On Display at Guild Exhibition

A display of true craftsmanship in the art of hand weaving began yesterday in Duke of Kent Room, Empress Hotel, where Victoria Handweavers' Guild is presenting its annual national exhibition.

Not only are there displays of the work of Victoria members, but also exhibited are prize-winning articles from the London, Ont. District Weavers' Guild exhibition, including the grand award winner, a wall hanging entitled "Animals," hand woven and spun by Mrs. Krystyna Sadowski, Indian Harbour, N.S.

A vestment set, hand woven for St. Alban's Anglican Church, Winnipeg, by Mrs. Elsie Ogston, was a first prize winner. Woven on white Egyptian thread with gold lamette for the pattern, the samples of her work show exquisite artistry. Actual set could not be taken from the church, but displayed with the samples were photographs of the pieces.

Another outstanding article is an angora stole, woven and spun by Clara Kerby McDivitt, Petrolia, Ont.

MANY PHASES OF WORK

Miss Marjorie Hill, chairman of the standards committee, through which all work must pass before being exhibited, demonstrated spinning. An antependium, which she wove for Stevenson Memorial Church, is one of the most colorful and expertly woven exhibits.

Chairman of the exhibition committee and vice-president of the local guild, Mrs. F. E. Clark has several lengths of fine Scotch Cheviot suiting on display. She is also exhibiting some upholstery material woven to give an iridescent effect. Her soft wool evening stoles would make the light of pride shine in any woman's eyes.

Sitting at a small, four harness treadle loom set up in the centre of the room, was Mrs. Kathie Porter, who demonstrated weaving techniques. The machine, which can weave anything up to 20 inches wide, was set for the Rosepath design. She also demonstrated lace weaving, including such patterns as Spanish lace, Brook's bouquet and Danish lace. Exhibits of her work include fine quality neckties, drawing bags, stoles and bawsting curtains.

W. T. Turner, who began weaving just one year ago, is exhibiting a light blue wool

Autumn Event—At meeting of Ladies' Guild, All Saint's Church, View Royal, at the home of Mrs. D. O. Rochford, plans were made for a fall fair in mid-September, at the home of J. E. Goldring, Beesborough Road. Mrs. G. Reynolds presided and following the business session a social hour was enjoyed.

Only American member of the local guild is Miss Marie Foreman, San Francisco, Calif. Her most outstanding exhibit is an evening bag, made from the same material from which she wove a stole for Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower. It is woven of fine white wool and silver metallic thread, with trim of tiny rhinestones... the work of an artist. Displayed with the bag is a letter of thanks, sent to her from the president's wife.

A dress, hand woven from raw silk over wool by Mrs. E. E. Fowler is worthy of praise. It is styled by Mrs. Doris Lee. One dozen wool scarves, woven by Mrs. W. Fox Clarke, are worked in colorful strip patterns. A specialty of Mrs. Hazel Hodson's are dainty evening bags, woven in seed stitch. Another example of his craftsmanship with metallic thread to add a glitter.

The exhibition was opened by Miss Kathleena Agnew. It is open today until 10 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Self-Care of Athlete's Foot Should Stop at Foot Powder

Each summer a large number of people become afflicted with a peculiar condition of the skin variously known as ringworm, athlete's foot or dermatophytosis.

An even larger number who have had this skin condition previously get it again during the warm weather. The disorder does not disappear in cold weather, but in summer the greater perspiration and added moisture favor the growth of the fungus which causes this condition.

Furthermore, more of us become athletically minded and are exposed to new infections in such places as swimming pools or locker rooms.

The feet, between the toes, the hands, the groin and the scalp, are favorite locations for this condition. Dermatophytosis may take various forms such as blistering, scaling, cracking, lumps or callosities, lesions of the skin. Itching is common. Too many have only mild symptoms which they do not recognize, and allow to go on for a long time without treatment.

The Council on Pharmacy and Chemistry of the American Medical Association has made some recommendations on dermatophytosis which include the following:

The feet should be kept clean and dry with special attention to the spaces between the toes; the shoes and socks should be aired when not in use. Shoes should be chosen with a view to making them as light and well-aired as is compatible with working conditions. A dusting powder consisting of 10 per cent boric acid in powder talcum should be put on the feet, in between the toes every night and morning.

The value of foot baths for the prevention of dermatophytosis seems to be slight. Contrary to what was formerly believed, these foot baths have not proved of much value.

Vending Machine Issue Tabled By Oak Bay Council

Automatic candy, cigarette and gum machines became legal in Victoria Tuesday, but so far Oak Bay has not indicated whether the municipality will follow suit.

The matter arose at Wednesday night's council meeting. The Kiwanis Club of Victoria North asked permission of the council to place candy and gum machines in Oak Bay as a charitable project.

The club stated that a project of this nature is being launched in the city. The machines are owned by the club and serviced by members. The club also pays the license fees. Kiwanis signs are placed on the charity machines.

Council tabled the request pending further study.

Hannah's Daily Pint Proves Doctors Right

THORNTON HEATH, England (AP)—For years they warned Hannah Procter her daily pint of whisky would kill her and, a doctor told the coroner Thursday, it did—at the age of 78.

"She was the only chronic alcoholic I ever knew to reach such an age," said Dr. David Haler, a pathologist. He said the cause of death was cirrhosis of the liver.

"Alcohol," mused coroner J. W. Bennet, "can be a preservative."

"Nothing is safe as a local application except the boric acid foot powder mentioned under prophylaxis prevention. If there is not any improvement within two weeks, consult a physician."

Self-treatment or over-treatment of these infections frequently makes them much more difficult to cure, or leads to complications.

The particular fungus responsible can be identified only with the aid of a microscope. Proper treatment depends on the kind of infecting fungus found, its location, and the duration and severity of the symptoms.

Canadian Housing Costs Up 7% Over 1951, CMHC States

OTTAWA (CP)—Cost of building a home in Canada last year was 7 per cent higher than in 1951. Interest rates on housing loans also rose. The owner put up more money himself to finance his house.

Housing facts and figures for 1952 were issued Thursday in the annual review of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a Crown-owned company. The review disclosed:

Average cost of houses financed under the National Housing Act rose from $10,211 in 1951 to $10,934 last year. Average income of purchasers rose 13 per cent from $4,076 to $4,616.

From an Ontario survey, interest rates by leading companies on first residential mortgage loans rose from an average of 5.78 per cent in 1951 to 5.39 per cent in 1952. Interest rates on corresponding loans by individuals increased from 5.57 per cent to 5.76 and on loans under the act from 5 to 5.25 per cent.

Share of total funds provided by government and lending institutions declined while the proportion put up by owners and non-institutional lenders increased.

"The increasing contribution of owners' and non-institutional lenders' funds in 1952 reflected the strong underlying demand for new housing during the year supported by rising real incomes and continued high levels of savings," the review says.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Deaf Girl Self-Conscious Because of Acne Scars

Q.—A recent letter says, "I am 16 years old and graduated from high school this year. I am hoping you can give me information about what can be done for a skin which is heavily marked with acne scars. I cannot go around looking as I do. I was fired from my part-time job, which I needed, because of my appearance and people on the street stare at me. Am I too young to have this corrected? How expensive will it be? I am completely deaf but that is not so bad because I am good at lip reading. I have no self-confidence because of the way I look."

A.—I wrote an article about this not long ago. Sandpaper surgery is most successful in correcting acne scars once the acne is healed. You should see a plastic surgeon and talk with him about this. You have overcome one handicap gallantly and you can overcome this, too.

Q.—"Would you please tell me if my figure is okay? I am 15 years old. I am five feet four inches tall and weigh 120 pounds. My bust measures 32 inches, my waist 28 inches and my hips 37 inches. I will look

'JUST WILLIAM'

'Third Degree' For Royal Princes

By MURIEL NARAWAY

LONDON (CP).—A daily "third-degree" grilling about their roles in the Coronation has virtually become part of the educational curriculum for Princes William and Richard, high-spirited sons of the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

Back at their Kent boarding school after a brief post-Coronation holiday, the royal youngsters, 11 and 9, have met a barrage of questions from their fellow students. Not that the quizzing by the typical British youngsters at Wellesley House School is new or obnoxious to the victims.

Both Richard and William, young as they are, are pretty used to the blaze of reflected glory. William has faced the same good-natured badgering and questioning over his performance as page at the marriage of the then Princess Elizabeth and Duke of Edinburgh in 1947. Just five, he fell over the bride's train in Westminster Abbey.

At school William is known as a "good egg" who can be relied on for raising a few good laughs in the common room. On such occasions as end-of-term theatricals, in which he usually takes part, he is likely to add a "just William" touch to the occasion, raising an unexpected laugh.

Like nine-year-old Richard, with his lively personality, William is happiest out of doors, tramping or riding around the family estate, Barnwell Castle in Northamptonshire.

The weekly publication refers to the official parades, tours and other public appearances which have been going on ever since the Coronation June 2. It says in an editorial:

"Without respite she has endured the strain of one public appearance after another. This would take toll of a strong man. Youthful and resilient though the Queen may be, she is not insensitive and is not entirely immune from fatigue."

The Queen is 27. The newspaper says the Queen's post-Coronation program, which has now taken her to Northern Ireland, "looks like sheer exploitation."

"Anybody engaged in public affairs knows well how, with the best desires imaginable, the public can be the cruelest of taskmasters."

There will probably be regulations limiting the amount of advertising too, he said. His reassurances were aired in the House of Commons by his assistant, Capt. Harry Crookshank.

The government's outline of its plans to let private telecasters break into the government-owned BBC's monopoly came as churchmen voiced more frantic fears that Britain's morals would drop should sponsored TV become a reality.

The great anxiety was expressed by Anglican Bishop of York, Dr. Cyril Garbett, who said that unless commercial TV is properly controlled it might harm the national life more than the atomic bomb.

He said American sponsored television "shows a series of murders, robberies and hold-ups" and that little children "are familiar with a world in which violence is normal."

Queen Exploited, English Church Paper Charges
LONDON (AP)—The Church of England newspaper today complains that the Queen is being subjected to "sheer exploitation" by her own subjects.

Britons Assured Sponsored TV To Be Controlled
LONDON (Reuters).—The government Thursday offered assurance that sponsored television will not make a night mare of the British way of life. The commercial stations will be under tight controls. If the script for a show is not satisfactory, a TV control board can put the offending station off the air. Postmaster-General Earl de la Warr told the House of Lords.

STRATHCONA CHEF CONTINUES TO TICKLE VICTORIA PALATES

The Infra-Red Rotisserie operating daily in the window of the Strathcona Cafe on Douglas Street continues to attract delighted attention from the casual passer as well as from the gastronomic gourmet. And no wonder. Even the most uninitiated can see how this modern adaptation of the ancient Spit-Roasting method of cuisine so thoroughly cooks and yet so perfectly preserves all the natural juices of Chicken, Duck, Ham or Prime Roast Beef, and at the Strathcona when they say "Prime" they know the real meaning of the term. Chef Louis Molin is here seen basting a tender little sucking piglet, while the luscious ham on the other spit is just about ready to be served to Strathcona patrons. But these delights are to be enjoyed not only in the Strathcona, for the Olson Brothers (Keith and John) will have a chicken ready for you to take home any time you say for only $1.75 or such a stuffed duck as you never before tasted for $3.50. The Strathcona Box Lunches for picnics, up-Island or sea trips are another feature fast becoming a "must" with travel-wise Victorians and visitors. Chicken or spare ribs lunches with all the trimmings and dessert for only $1.50.

Oak Bay Needs 5 Classrooms; Approves School Board Loan

Unforeseen expenses amounting to $12,450 will have to be met by the Greater Victoria school district before the fall term, it was learned at an Oak Bay council meeting Wednesday night.

The Board of School Trustees asked the municipality to permit borrowing of that amount in order to provide five extra classrooms for the district.

Necessitated by heavy Grade 1 registration to date the five extra classrooms will be in addition to extra classroom accommodation already set up in the board's current budget. Gordon Head, Oaklands, Wilfrid and Bank Street areas are reported to be most crowded.

The school board will not be able to make the necessary loan until the action is approved by all municipalities in the school district.

Borrowing power under those conditions is given school boards under the Public Schools Act. The loan must be repaid within six months, which will carry it into next year and make it a matter to be considered in 1954 estimates.

Oak Bay council approved the action on the understanding that the municipality's share of the cost would amount to $1,886.18.

The school board also reported on its plans for use of four classrooms in the old Oak Bay High School.

Council had earlier given permission to the board to use the school again provided the board would undertake to make necessary repairs, provide janitor service and pay a nominal rental.

The board's report showed cost of repair would be $3,200 according to estimates. This would include a large section of new asphalt shingle roof, addition of two fire escapes and many other lesser repairs and alterations. Council had earlier estimated the cost at $5,000.

Council approved the board's plans including payment of a $25 monthly rental.

Involved in a collision with another car at Bay and Shelbourne June 22, motorist Leonard H. Sudlow, 315 Island Highway, was fined $15 in city police court Thursday on a charge of driving a car not equipped with adequate brakes.

GEOFFREY ELLIS

Ellis Resigns As Councillor In Oak Bay

The resignation of Oak Bay councillor and police commissioner Geoffrey Ellis was announced following an Oak Bay council meeting Wednesday night.

By-elections to fill the two vacant posts have been set for July 18.

The sudden resignation followed sale by Mr. Ellis of his Oak Bay properties, which meant he could no longer qualify for the council position.

He has served two terms on the council at Oak Bay, the first in 1947-48, and his present term would have carried on to 1954. He was elected to the police commission in 1951 for a two-year term.

Manager of a Victoria credit concern, Mr. Ellis was for 13 years a member of the B.C. Provincial Police.

Municipal clerk A. D. Findlay was appointed returning officer and E. H. Hart as deputy. Nomination day is Friday, July 10.

New York's American Museum of Natural History has a great hall containing 750,000 specimens of the world's birds.

Plea 'Plain Humbug' Says Justice Manson

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice A. M. Manson said Wednesday defense allegations that he mishandled the trial of a condemned slayer were "plain humbug and impertinence."

Counsel Thomas Hurley is appealing the conviction of Walter Pavlukoff for the killing of Stanley Petrie, bank manager, during a hold-up in Aug. 1947.

Pavlukoff lived in Toronto from 1947 until his apprehension early this year. He was sentenced to be hanged June 25, but a reprieve was granted to allow time for the appeal.

In a special report to the Court of Appeal, Mr. Justice Manson said "evidence against the accused in assize court left no possible doubt as to his guilt."

Earlier, in a 14-page amended notice of appeal, Mr. Hurley said Mr. Justice Manson "showed his unconcealed opinion of the guilt of the accused" during the trial.

ACCUSES JURIST

Defense centred on a remark made by Mr. Justice Manson to Pavlukoff after the accused man rose in the prisoner's dock during the trial and charged the jurist with "disgusting conduct."

"Fortunately for you, the matter is in the hands of the jury—in the hands of the jury and not in my hands," Mr. Justice Manson told Pavlukoff at the time.

(The passage between the judge and Pavlukoff was not reported in the press at the time of the trial on Mr. Justice Manson's direct orders.)

Referring to his answer which was cited by the defense Mr. Justice Manson told the appeal court: "I strongly suspect the quoted language is taken out of context and I am confident that the jury did not draw the inference that had the matter been in my hands I would have decided against the accused."

CONVEYED IDEA

Mr. Hurley's amended notice contained allegations that "by his manner, gestures and general demeanour the learned trial judge conveyed to the jury his conviction of the guilt of the accused."

In his report, Mr. Justice Manson said:

"The evidence against the accused left no possible doubt as to his guilt. He did not take the witness box himself nor did he call any witnesses to establish his innocence. Despite the overwhelming character of the evidence against the accused and, perhaps because of it, I did the very utmost I could to put before the jury any reasonable doubt in his favor."

Defense lawyers argued that Mr. Justice Manson, "did not hold the scales of justice evenly in that he magnified the weight of evidence against the accused and minimized the weight of evidence in favor of the accused."

"I did the best I could with the evidence. The defense called no evidence," was the reply.

U.S. Craft Win Honors At Regatta

VANCOUVER (CP) — Classy sailors from American yacht clubs have breezed out in front in the week-long Pacific International Yachting Association regatta in English Bay here.

But B.C. yachtsmen scored a fair share of the wins Wednesday and Tuesday.

Two bowsprit- and bowsprit-battles stole the show from the other 125 entries Wednesday. Seconds decided the two races.

Harold Jones of Vancouver in Spirit and Ray Cooke of Seattle in Circe, the two largest ships in the regatta, fought every inch of the course.

In the other epic, Seattle's Bill Taylor in Double Martini won the Star class from Phil and Sid Miller in Clear Sky. The Millers closed a gap at the finish, but were seven seconds too late.

Results listed Thursday night:

May's Living Costs Up Half-Point Index Shows

OTTAWA (BUP) — Higher food costs pushed the consumer price index up half a point during May after a steady decline which started last November, the Bureau of Statistics said today.

The index for June 1 was 114.9, compared with 114.4 on May 1, and 116.1 last November. The food index jumped 1.3 points to reach 111.4. The bureau said there were "substantially firmer prices" for fresh and cured pork and fresh fruits and vegetables. There were smaller gains in the prices for most other meats, bread and eggs.

Butter and canned fruits and vegetable prices, however, were lower during the month. The new consumer price index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

On the basis of the old cost of living index, with 1935-39 prices equalling 100, living costs rose 1.2 points during May to hit 184.8 on June 1.

The bureau said that the cost of shelter rose from 122.9 to 123.6 on the new base. This was the result of a 1 per cent increase in rents.

The index of other groups making up the consumer price index—clothing, household operation, and other commodities and services—showed "unusual stability," the bureau said. There was no change during the month in the figures of 110.1 for clothing, 116.6 for household operation, and 115.1 for other commodities and services.

The bureau said in another report that industrial material prices at the wholesale level fell off during the third week of June. The index had been 234.2 since the week of May 29, and fell to 232.7. Changes in the wholesale industrial materials prices are not always fully reflected in living costs.

The CCF is assured of 14 seats as they are bound to win a second Vancouver East seat where veteran Arthur Turner has a large lead.

In Thursday's counting Social Credit elected two members on the fifth count, Alex Matthews, on Vancouver Centre "A" ballot, who defeated CCF'er James Bury, and George Tomlinson, in North Vancouver, who beat Liberal W.R. McDougall, while CCF'er Frank Calder was returned in the far-north Atlin riding.

These three were the only candidates elected throughout the day and the standing at midnight, when returning officers called it a night, showed: Social Credit, 21; CCF, 13; Liberal, 3; Progressive Conservative, 1; and Labor, 1. Leading: Social Credit, 8; CCF, 1.

Final results in a majority of the key Vancouver seats aren't expected to be known until next week because counting teams are bogged down in recounts.

An analysis shows that Social Credit candidates, generally speaking, increased their first count leads in subsequent counting wherever a CCF candidate is running second, which is the case in all doubtful ridings but Point Grey.

For instance, in Vancouver Centre the Sacred candidate led by 828 at the end of the first count but by the end of the fifth count had piled up a majority of 1,229.

This was done by capturing about half as many Conservative second choices as the Liberals, but five times as many as his nearest rival, the CCF.

It is certain the same pattern will follow on Vancouver Centre "B" ballot where CCF'er Mrs. Laura Jamieson will be ousted by Social Credit.

The Sacred victory in North Vancouver brought to four the number of seats the party has gained from the Liberals. The CCF has lost three to Social Credit, gaining one from the Liberals. The Liberals have gained one from the CCF and one from the Tories.

Several hours later, a coast guard plane reported sighting a large oil slick and floating debris at approximately the position given. Other search planes continued to comb the area, without results.

The navy said the plane, a Martin Mariner, was on routine patrol.

Bennett Asks Finance Chief to Retain Post

SCs Assured Of 28 Seats;
May Get 29

Comfortable Working
Majority for Bennett

By GORDON FORBES

Premier W. A. C. Bennett's Social Credit Party is assured of 28 seats in B.C.'s 48-seat Legislature—a comfortable working majority.

This was apparent today on the basis of a detailed study of results of alternative voting throughout the province.

Social Credit strength could reach 29 seats if Education Minister Tilly Royston can edge out Liberal Leader Arthur Laing in Vancouver-Point Grey, a contest that will be in doubt until the last vote is transferred.

The trend of vote transfers all over the province, however, indicates that the Social Credit will win the seven other seats in which they now have lead. This, added to 21 already elected, will give Mr. Bennett a minimum of 28 seats—an 8-seat margin over the combined opposition.

The CCF is assured of 14 seats as they are bound to win a second Vancouver East seat where veteran Arthur Turner has a large lead.

In Thursday's counting Social Credit elected two members on the fifth count, Alex Matthews, on Vancouver Centre "A" ballot, who defeated CCF'er James Bury, and George Tomlinson, in North Vancouver, who beat Liberal W.R. ## NEW TYPHOON BEARS DOWN TOWARDS JAPAN

TOKYO (UP)—The year's most violent typhoon churned up the South Pacific today toward Formosa, the Okinawas and flood-battered Japan.

Weather observers hoisted storm warnings on the east coast of Formosa and the tiny islets between Formosa and the Ryukyus.

South Japan braced itself as its people prayed that the storm, packing 160-mile-an-hour winds at its centre, would turn away from them. The Japanese faced an epidemic of dysentery which already has taken 53 lives in the aftermath of last week's floods, Japan's worst in 60 years.

Typhoon "Kit" was located 400 miles east of Formosa today. Moving at a speed of 10 miles an hour, it was expected to skirt the Formosan coast and indicate its course as it moved toward the south entrance of the China Sea.

TIMES CROSSWORD WINNER

Happy Woman Sent In 55 Solutions

"It was awfully difficult to know which was the right word," a surprised but happy Mrs. Alice Alder, of 1728 Coronation Avenue, confided today when notified she was the winner of $225 in the Times weekly crossword contest.

Mrs. Alder got around part of the difficulty, however, by sending in multiple answers, using alternate words for all the blanks she was not too sure about.

"I worked out quite a system so I didn't have to spend too much time on it," she said. She submitted 55 different possible solutions. Five of these were on the forms printed in the Times and 50 were on home-made forms.

Mrs. Alder, a widow since last March, is the mother of a four and a half year old son, Lawrence. She says she will have no difficulty in putting her prize money to good use.

For the new crossword starting today a new set of rules has been adopted. It will include a $50 bonus for winners who are subscribers to the Victoria Times.

See Page 7 for the new puzzle and new rules. The answer to Puzzle 14, won by Mrs. Alder, is on Page 6.

Rhee's Stand Leaves Talks in Stalemate

South Korean Leader Holds Firm to Demand For Unified Nation in New Appeal to U.S.

SEOUL (AP)—Korean truce talks were stalemated today as President Syngman Rhee clung stubbornly to his demand for a unified Korea and said he "will never abandon the struggle half way."

In a plea recorded by CBS, Rhee called on the United States to back him, and promised that his people "will keep fighting and dying" in the battle against Communism.

"The Korean people will never swerve from the original objective of our common cause," he said. "We cannot afford to rest or halt until we consummate the one democratic world."

Rhee's plea came after a 65-minute morning meeting with U.S. envoy Walter S. Robertson. The seventh secret session, a high source said, Robertson rejected Rhee's demand for war if a post-armistice political conference doesn't agree within 90 days to unify Korea.

After the conference Robertson told newspapermen: "Our discussions are continuing. I expect to see President Rhee again."

No time has been set for the next session. Even if Rhee and Robertson reach agreement, the UN must get the Communist to sign the truce.

Irish Guard Young Queen

BELFAST (AP)—The Queen toured the heart of Northern Ireland today under heavy guard.

Explosive experts checked bridges between Belfast and Londonderry along the 90-mile route the royal train passed. Security measures were strengthened after anti-royalists damaged a bridge with a time bomb Thursday near the Irish Republic border. This incident was regarded as a protest against the partition of Ireland rather than a direct attack on the young Queen.

The bridge was miles from the royal party's route. Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh got a friendly reception in the six counties which still owe allegiance to the British crown.

Several hours later, a coast guard plane reported sighting a large oil slick and floating debris at approximately the position given. Other search planes continued to comb the area, without results.

The navy said the plane, a Martin Mariner, was on routine patrol.

Gunderson Will Reply To Invitations Shortly

Premier W. A. C. Bennett has asked Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, defeated in Oak Bay in the general election, to stay in his cabinet.

The premier, who has just returned from an eastern party conference, said today he has offered to hold a by-election to allow Mr. Gunderson to try for another seat.

He didn't indicate which seat will be opened, and said the by-election could not be held until after the special fall session.

The finance minister will make his decision within two weeks.

Questioned by reporters, Mr. Gunderson left the impression with some he may continue, but he declined to make a definite decision until he has "thought it out."

GREAT SACRIFICE
"It will be a great personal sacrifice to me if I stay in politics," he said.

Mr. Gunderson was first appointed to the cabinet by Premier Bennett after the 1952 election. Later, he won the Similkameen seat in a by-election. He left the interior seat to contest Oak Bay, and was beaten by Liberal P. A. Gibbs.

He declined to discuss the possibility of seeking a federal seat in the August 10 election.

If he decides to carry on, he will not be able to sit in the legislature when it meets September 15.

Premier Bennett said he would speak for the Finance Minister in the House.

DISAPPOINTED
The Premier termed Mr. Gunderson's defeat "one of the great disappointments of the election."

If he retires, it will be a great loss to B.C., he said.

Premier Bennett explained it would be impossible to hold a by-election for Mr. Gunderson before the September session.

The Premier did not favor the suggestion that a new seat be created for the by-election.

He felt re-distribution should be effected only for a general election.

On this matter, he expects to start the big re-distribution task at next February's session.

WANTS TIME
"We want the committee to have plenty of time to work on it," he said.

Asked if he's considering appointment of a cabinet minister from among the Island Sacred MLA's, Premier Bennett would only say:

"The Island had an opportunity to have a cabinet minister (Gunderson)."

He said he had no cabinet changes in mind at the present time.

Meanwhile, a Vancouver report quoted Premier Bennett as saying there will be changes in B.C.'s system before another election. The Vancouver story said there would be a revision or perhaps total scrapping of the alternative voting system.

OPTIMISTIC
The Premier doesn't think Education Minister Tilly Royston is in any danger of being defeated by Liberal leader Arthur Laing in Point Grey.

He noted the "peculiar observations" in the press that Mr. Laing may win the seat.

"They haven't even started the second count yet," observed the Premier.

Premier Bennett said he plans to campaign in the coming federal election, but only in B.C.

During the Toronto conference, he said he has time to discuss B.C.'s forthcoming submission to Ottawa on Dominion-Provincial relations with Carl Goldenberg, B.C.'s economic council.

Premier Bennett said he will ask for a conference with Ottawa after the federal election at which he will press his argument for a better financial deal with the senior government.

The Premier leaves for his Kelowna home Sunday, and will return to the capital about next Friday.

MARGARET'S ROMANCE NIPPED?

Britain Buzzes After Transfer Of Dashing Townsend to Belgium

LONDON (BUP) — Britain buzzed today with excited and romantic speculation about Princess Margaret and divorced Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

They became the main topic of conversation in Britain after the handsome Townsend was transferred to a post in Belgium while the pretty princess was on an African tour with her mother.

Both the press and public were speculating about the love life of the 22-year-old princess. Headlines announced Townsend's "surprise" transfer from Buckingham Palace, where he has served as a royal equerry in waiting, to the post of air attaché in Brussels.

ON IRELAND TOUR

Townsend, presently is accompanying Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh on their Royal tour of Northern Ireland.

Originally, Townsend had been scheduled to accompany Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth to Southern Rhodesia. Most newspapers treated the story with the usual respect and reverence accorded the Royal family, but headlines and large photographs of an unsmiling Margaret left no doubt the public felt Townsend's routine transfer was seriously connected with a Royal romance.

Townsend, 38, is divorced. His marriage to the former Rosemary Pawle was dissolved last December and he received custody of their two small sons.

The pipe-smoking group captain was the innocent party in the divorce but, even so, he would be exceedingly difficult for Elizabeth, as Queen and head of the Church of England, to permit Margaret to marry Townsend.

QUEEN'S ASSENT
Since Margaret is next in line for the throne after Prince Charles and Princess Anne, Margaret must receive the Queen's permission before marrying.

Tail, dashing, dark-haired Townsend was a hero of the Battle of Britain as a fighter pilot. The late King George VI appointed him an equerry nine years ago, and Townsend held the position until his Brussels transfer was ordered.

Townsend frequently has escorted Margaret to the theatre and has been her dancing partner at numerous balls. At one time he was mentioned for the job of comptroller of Queen Mother Elizabeth's household, which would have brought him into even closer association with Margaret.

Buckingham Palace denied there were any romantic reasons for the transfer, but for some time court circles have been commenting on what appeared to be a deep affection between Townsend and Margaret.

Certain of 28 Seats
Socreds May Get 29

By GORDON FORBES
Premier W. A. C. Bennett's Social Credit Party is assured of 28 seats in B.C.'s 48-seat Legislature—a comfortable working majority.

This was apparent today on the basis of a detailed study of results of alternative voting throughout the province.

Social Credit strength could reach 29 seats if Education Minister Tilly Roiston can edge out Liberal Leader Arthur Laing in Vancouver-Point Grey, a contest that will be in doubt until the last vote is transferred.

The trend of vote transfers all over the province, however, indicates that the Social Credit will win the seven other seats in which they now have lead. This, added to 21 already elected, will give Mr. Bennett a minimum of 28 seats—an 8-seat margin over the combined opposition.

The CCF is assured of 14 seats as they are bound to win a second Vancouver East seat where veteran Arthur Turner has a large lead.

In Thursday's counting Social Credit elected two members on the fifth count, Alex Matthews, on Vancouver Centre "A" ballot, who defeated CCF's James Bury, and George Tomlinson, in North Vancouver, who beat Liberal W. R. McDougall, while CCF's Frank Calder was returned in the far-north Atlin riding.

These three were the only candidates elected throughout the day and the standing at midnight, when returning officers called it a night, showed:

STANDINGS
Social Credit, 21; CCF, 13; Liberal, 3; Progressive Conservative, 1; and Labor, 1. Leading: Social Credit, 8; CCF, 1.

Final results in a majority of the key Vancouver seats aren't expected to be known until next week because counting teams are bogged down in recounts.

An analysis shows that Social Credit candidates, generally speaking, increased their first count leads in subsequent counting wherever a CCF candidate is running second, which is the case in all doubtful ridings but Point Grey.

For instance, in Vancouver Centre the Socred candidate led by 828 at the end of the first count but by the end of the fifth count had piled up a majority of 1,259.

This was done by capturing about half as many Conservative second choices as the Liberals, but five times as many as his nearest rival, the CCF. When the Liberal second choices were distributed the Socred piled up 300 more than the CCF.

It is certain the same pattern will follow on Vancouver Centre "B" ballot where CCF's Mrs. Laura Jamieson will be ousted by Social Credit.

The Socred victory in North Vancouver brought to four the number of seats the party has gained from the Liberals. The CCF has lost three to Social Credit, gaining one from the Liberals. The Liberals have gained one from the CCF and one from the Tories.

Rhee's Stand Leaves
Talks in Stalemate

South Korean Leader Holds Firm to Demand For Unified Nation in New Appeal to U.S.

SEOUL (AP)—Korean truce talks were stalemated today as President Syngman Rhee clung stubbornly to his demand for a unified Korea and said he "will never abandon the struggle half way."

In a plea recorded by CBS, Rhee called on the United States to back him, and promised that his people "will keep fighting and dying" in the battle against Communism.

"The Korean people will never swerve from the original objective of our common cause," he said. "We cannot afford to rest or halt until we consummate the one democratic world."

Rhee's plea came after a 65-minute morning meeting with U.S. envoy Walter S. Robertson, their seventh secret session. A high source said Robertson rejected Rhee's demand for war if a post-armistice political conference doesn't agree within 90 days to unify Korea.

After the conference Robertson told newspapermen: "Our discussions are continuing. I expect to see President Rhee again."

No time has been set for the next session.

Even if Rhee and Robertson reach agreement, the UN must get the Communist to sign the truce.

Minister of Finance
Will Reply Shortly

Premier W. A. C. Bennett has asked Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, defeated in Oak Bay in the general election, to stay in his cabinet.

The premier, who has just returned from an eastern party conference, said today he has offered to hold a by-election to allow Mr. Gunderson to try for another seat.

He didn't indicate which seat will be opened, and said the by-election could not be held until after the special fall session.

The finance minister will make his decision within two weeks.

Questioned by reporters, Mr. Gunderson left the impression with some he may continue, but he declined to make a definite decision until he has "thought it out."

GREAT SACRIFICE
"It will be a great personal sacrifice to me if I stay in politics," he said.

Mr. Gunderson was first appointed to the cabinet by Premier Bennett after the 1952 election. Later, he won the Similkameen seat in a by-election.

He left the interior seat to contest Oak Bay, and was beaten by Liberal P. A. Gibbs.

He declined to discuss the possibility of seeking a federal seat in the August 10 election.

"If he decides to carry on, he will not be able to sit in the legislature when it meets September 15."

Premier Bennett said he would speak for the Finance Minister in the House.

DISAPPOINTED
The Premier termed Mr. Gunderson's defeat "one of the great disappointments of the election."

"If he retires, it will be a great loss to B.C.," he said.

Premier Bennett explained it would be impossible to hold a by-election for Mr. Gunderson before the September session.

The Premier did not favor the suggestion that a new seat be created for the by-election.

He felt re-distribution should be effected only for a general election.

On this matter, he expects to start the big re-distribution task at next February's session.

WANTS TIME
"We want the committee to have plenty of time to work on it," he said.

Asked if he's considering appointment of a cabinet minister from among the Island Socred MLA's, Premier Bennett would only say:

"The Island had an opportunity to have a cabinet minister (Gunderson)."

He said he had no cabinet changes in mind at the present time.

Meanwhile, a Vancouver report quoted Premier Bennett as saying there will be changes in B.C.'s system before another election. The Vancouver story said there would be a revision or perhaps total scrapping of the alternative voting system.

OPTIMISTIC
The Premier doesn't think Education Minister Tilly Roiston is in any danger of being defeated by Liberal leader Arthur Laing in Point Grey.

He noted the "peculiar observations" in the press that Mr. Laing may win the seat.

"They haven't even started the second count yet," observed the Premier.

Premier Bennett said he plans to campaign in the coming federal election, but only in B.C.

During the Toronto conference, he said he has time to discuss B.C.'s forthcoming submission to Ottawa on Dominion-Provincial relations with Carl Goldenberg, B.C.'s economic council.

Premier Bennett said he will ask for a conference with Ottawa after the federal election at which he will press his argument for a better financial deal with the senior government.

The Premier leaves for his Kelowna home Sunday, and will return to the capital about next Friday.
